Old John Enjoys Late Christmas

Twinkling over his turkey, spry 90-year-old John Pinder of Royal Oak joined 125 other Victorians at annual senior citizens' Christmas dinner in Salvation Army Citadel last night. As they supervised program of food, gifts and entertainment, officials explained: "We always have the party late because the old folks are so busy during the holiday, and they like it that way." —(Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman)

'Mad Mike' Behind Iron Bars After Zero Chase in Wilds

(From CP, BUP)

NIDDRIE, Ont.—Mad Mike Timocenko is behind iron bars today after being arrested with his wife while attempting to escape from Ontario provincial police into the wild bush late last night.

Provincial police closed in on Timocenko, 34, a railway laborer, as he was pulling his wife of seven months along in a sleigh. His wife is expecting a baby in two months.

Timocenko was unarmed and offered no resistance to police as they came in on him from two sides. He will be taken to Kenora by car from Amesdale, six miles east of here.

The gunman had holed up in the small cabin in sub-zero weather with a large supply of ammunition and food. He punched out the windows of the hut and had fired about 100 rounds of ammunition intermittently since Thursday night. Early Friday afternoon the shooting stopped.

The six policemen who were at the scene did not return the fire for fear of hitting the woman. They threw two tear gas bombs into the shack Friday afternoon, with no results. It was believed Timocenko had gas masks with him.

Late Friday night they rushed the cabin after dropping a tear gas bomb. The cabin was empty. They immediately set out to search the surrounding area and found the pair almost midway between Niddrie and Amesdale.

Niddrie is a small hamlet of about a dozen families of railway workers. It is located about 206 miles east of Winnipeg, between Reddit and Sioux Lookout.

Timocenko went berserk Thursday following a dispute with his brother-in-law, Anthony Sydor of Oakburn, Man, who is also his section foreman.

An iron curtain of boxcars had been moved up on the CNR tracks to shield police from the gunman. Passenger trains, including the east-bound Super-Continental, managed to roll through the snow-covered battleground undamaged.

Mrs. Keith Rebhan, a resident of Niddrie, said Timocenko "hasn't been right in his head for the last five weeks." She said he has threatened the people in the hamlet that "he would shoot them up."

Princess Gravely Ill

ROME (UP)—Princess Beatrice, daughter of the late King Alphonso XIII of Spain, is seriously ill in a Rome clinic.

Friends said the Infanta Beatrice was suffering from a suspected tumor of the brain.

Her mother, the former Queen Victoria Eugenia Christina, arrived from Switzerland Friday morning.

Princess Beatrice is the wife of Prince Alessandro Torlonia, head of one of Italy's wealthiest families.

New Evidence

Ex-B.C. Man Free Of Loyalty Cloud

WASHINGTON (CP) — William Henry Taylor, a former Canadian who is now a U.S. official of the International Monetary Fund, was completely cleared Friday by the United States government of long-standing charges of disloyalty.

Taylor, a native of Revelstoke, B.C., who became a U.S. citizen in 1940, was the first to announce that he had been cleared.

This was confirmed later by Hall Fairbanks, secretary of the international organization's loyalty board, who said that new evidence had caused the board to reverse a June 28 finding that there had been "reasonable doubt" as to Taylor's loyalty.

Taylor, a treasury official during the Truman administration, was caught up in the post-war Red hysteria in the United States and accused of disloyalty on the basis of charges by Elizabeth Bentley, professed Communist spy, that he was a member of a Communist espionage ring during the Second World War.

Now an assistant director of the Middle and Far East divisions of the International Monetary Fund, Taylor was never permitted to face his accuser, though he denied her accusations five times before grand juries and three times before congressional committees.

NEVER MET TAYLOR

Miss Bentley admitted she had never met Taylor. In testimony in 1949 and again in 1950, she said only that a "William Taylor" of the treasury department was a member of a spy ring.

The 48-year-old Taylor, who suffered a heart attack last year, repeatedly sought an opportunity to face Miss Bentley, now teaching at a Catholic academy in Louisiana, and deny her charges. U.S. security officials denied the request.

Diaper Flag Halts Trains Just in Time

FLINT, Mich (AP)—Mrs. Thelma Haywood used a diaper Friday to flag down two onrushing trains after her car jammed across a double track.

In the car with Mrs. Haywood were her two young daughters and a fellow worker.

Mrs. Haywood said she saw the two trains bearing down from opposite directions. Grabbing an extra diaper, she waved frantically, and both trains stopped in time.

Effort To Ease Tension

Russia Rejects British Bid For Parley on Middle East

Rebuff Spurs West to Action

LONDON (CP)—Russia has rejected a tentative British suggestion for joint consultation on Middle East problems, it was learned Friday.

It was understood Britain proposed informal exploratory talks between Russia on the one hand and this country and the United States on the other. The purpose would have been to discuss ways of easing tension, particularly between Israel and the Arab states.

The British overture was said to have received a cool reply.

HIGH ON AGENDA

As a result, Prime Minister Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd will put Middle East problems high on their agenda for discussion with President Eisenhower in Washington. Methods of coping with the new Russian strategy, which involves the supply of arms to Egypt and other Middle Eastern countries, now are being worked out here.

MILITARY STALEMATE

The visiting British ministers may also press for a reconsideration of Western policy on two main fronts:

Cold war—the formulation of a new approach based on recognition of the fact that the East-West conflict has reached a position of military stalemate. Now more must be done in the political and economic sphere, perhaps through new forms of financial aid.

Asia—A fresh study of the problem of Communist China, including the question of recognition, trading embargoes, Formosa and the off-shore islands.

OTTAWA VISIT

The government naturally attaches great importance to the North American talks. The fact that Eden decided to travel by ship instead of plane suggests that he wanted ample time for a full preliminary review with Lloyd.

The ministers will spend two or three days in Ottawa early in February. This is not regarded merely as a courtesy call tacked on to the White House visit. Eden has made plain his respect for Canadian views, particularly on Asia.

Nine Months in Jail

City Girl Held 'For Own Good'

Detention of a 16-year-old Victoria girl in Oakalla prison farm for women for the last nine months is not illegal and is "for her own good," officials here said yesterday.

Case came to light when Canon W. J. Silverwood, Nelson juvenile court committee chairman and vicar of an Anglican church near Nelson, charged the girl had been held illegally since shortly after her arrest on a drunk charge in Vancouver last April.

The girl, ward of Victoria Family and Children's Service, was sent to girls' industrial school but was declared to be incorrigible and transferred to Oakalla. Government officials here indicated an order-in-council was passed some time ago approving the transfer.

SEEKING HOME

"We will be making a further attempt to place her in a foster home in any city where we can find a satisfactory home," said David Woodsworth, FCS director.

"What was done in Vancouver had our agreement because we realized there was no reasonable alternative," he said.

The girl had previously been convicted on a drug charge and was transferred from Oakalla to the Nelson jail. Later, she went to Vancouver and was arrested.

"The usual fine for a drinking charge is $10 for an adult offender," said Canon Silverwood. "Why then this stiff sentence and unwarranted transfer?"

Mr. Woodsworth said the girl was held in Oakalla to protect her from drug peddlers under whose influence she had fallen.

"In my opinion, jail is preferable to dope addiction and drinking," he said. "Outside of jail, there is no maximum security in the province."

However, efforts of jail officials to rehabilitate the girl were unsuccessful, because "we haven't got the facilities for this kind of girl."

Canon Silverwood said a good foster home awaits the girl, "a home with which I am well acquainted," but Mr. Woodsworth said the search was still going on.

"She has been in our care in various foster homes for several years," he said. "She is an exceptional case and requires exceptional measures."

Coming H-Tests Twice as Potent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States probably will test super-super hydrogen bombs in the Pacific this spring with an explosive force of 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 tons of TNT, a congressional authority said Friday.

Such an H-bomb could almost certainly obliterate any major city and spread deadly radioactive "fall-out" over many thousands of square miles.

A government study committee said only a few days ago that the "time is close at hand" when Russia as well as the United States will have hydrogen bombs of such magnitude.

An official government announcement of the new H-bomb tests is due soon. It is expected to stress precautions that will be taken to make sure no one will be hurt by the almost incredible force of the explosions.

President Eisenhower is understood to have given his final approval for the spring tests to chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The president made it clear in his state of the union message to Congress Thursday that the U.S. would not be persuaded by Soviet propaganda to call off its previously-planned tests.

The congressional authority said the new tests will be held at the Eniwetok-Bikini proving ground in the Marshall islands. The last tests there in the spring of 1954 were of "super H-bombs" comparable in violence to 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons of TNT.

"This year," the source said, "We are thinking in terms of 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 tons."

Thief Loots Mess Funds

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police here Friday were investigating the theft of almost $500 from the petty officers' mess and the wet canteen at HMCS Discovery.

The mess lost $230 and the canteen $221 shortly after a New Year's party at the RCN headquarters. The theft wasn't reported until Thursday, police said.

Moon-Mad Firebug On Loose

NICOLET, Que. (CP) — Belief that a moon-mad firebug is loose in this 5,000-population Quebec town was expressed Friday night by police chief Edouard Beaulac, who said 11 fires since last March show suspicion of criminal action.

The police chief also announced that it has been "definitely established" that a blaze last Saturday —the latest fire—was deliberately set by an unknown arsonist.

The fire destroyed the five-storey mother house of the Grey Nuns religious order in this centre on the south shore of the St. Lawrence river, opposite Trois-Rivieres, Que.

He said all have broken out on weekends and all have occurred in the last phase of the moon.

Chief Beaulac, who is also fire chief, made known his beliefs in the course of a continuing investigation of the blaze.

It caused an estimated $800,000 damage and was the third big fire in this town, about 90 miles northeast of Montreal, in less than a year.

Last March 21, a $700,000 blaze destroyed 35 buildings in the heart of the town, but no one was hurt.

Red Areas Out of Bounds To Army Men with Secrets

WASHINGTON (UP) — The U.S. army has forbidden officers and enlisted men with certain secret information to travel in Soviet bloc countries and other sensitive areas, it was disclosed yesterday.

The new regulations restrict travel of officers and enlisted men who have knowledge of current value about special intelligence information and/or activities.

The forbidden areas are:

Russia "and Soviet-bloc countries," Yugoslavia, Finland, Berlin, Macao, Quemoy, Matsu, Laos, Cambodia, and South Viet Nam, except for the Saigon urban area.

SHILLONG, India (AP) —The village of Mawsynram in the northeastern state of Assam is holding on to its distinction as the wettest place on earth. Official figures showed the village had 555.76 inches of rain in 1955. Last year it also claimed the world record.

Pre-War Pomp, Pageantry To Set Stage for Parliament

OTTAWA (BUP) — The opening of a new session of parliament next week will be the signal for the greatest show of pomp and ceremony, gold braid and silk gowns since the outbreak of the Second world war.

Governor General Vincent Massey will preside at a state dinner Monday night for 100 guests, and receive 400 at a state reception later in the evening. It will be the first post-war revival of the state functions on the eve of a new session.

BLAZE OF SCARLET

A 100-man honor guard from the Governor-General's Foot Guards, a battle-honored Ottawa reserve regiment, and an escort of Royal Canadian Mounted Police in scarlet tunics on black chargers will be mounted on the Parliament Hill driveway for the opening Tuesday.

Inside, the traditional ceremonies will be made even more colorful. All the same leading figures will be playing the same roles as last year, but word from diplomatic row and the social set was that the display of court dress for the men and the latest fashions for their ladies will be even more lavish. The whole canopy will be brightened by the glare of television floodlights, for the second time.

Some political sources said the government was even going to the extent of inviting hectic debate on major issues this session, in order to clear the air for a general election in 1957. A general election this year, however, was not inconceivable in the eyes of many observers.

Traitor Shot; Betrayed 500

RENNES, France (Reuters)—A Frenchman who served German military intelligence during the Second World War was shot at dawn here Friday as a traitor.

Claude Besson, 54, was sentenced to death in March, 1955, after he was found guilty of denouncing 500 Maquis (members of a French resistance movement) in north France to the German authorities. Many of them died in concentration camps, and 50 were shot.

French counter-espionage services finally caught up with him in March, 1953.

Cinderella Grace Takes Her Shy Prince to a Ball

NEW YORK (UP)—Grace Kelly, as regal as a princess, and Prince Rainier III of Monaco, as nervous-looking as a schoolboy, made their first public appearance Friday night at a fabulous high society ball appropriately entitled "A Night in Monte Carlo."

The couple entered the royal box overlooking the grand ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria while the orchestra played the Monaco national anthem.

Miss Kelly glanced adoringly at Prince Rainier several times, while he looked nervously around the room.

Among the 1,500 persons present were the cream of New York society, more than a dozen royal bluebloods, movie star Gary Cooper and his wife, and Oleg Cassini—a former flame of Miss Kelly.

After making their initial appearance in the royal box, the engaged couple had dinner and drank toasts to one another in champagne. Security guards kept red velvet curtains pulled carefully behind the royal box.

Behind the scenes at the gala ball, waiters and ball officials fended off telephone callers and party crashers who wanted to see the couple.

The prince received two long distance telephone calls, one from Sydney, Australia, and another from West Point, N.Y. But he refused to leave his fiancee to answer either call.

The entertainment, scheduled to begin at 10.30 p.m., with a fashion show, was delayed 45 minutes while the prince and his bride-to-be finished their dinner.

The orchestra repeatedly played waltzes, hoping to lure the young couple onto the floor to dance. But Rainier and his princess-to-be remained in their box until the entertainment ended.

Others in the royal box were Grace's parents, John, a bricklayer-turned-millionaire, and Mrs. Kelly; Father Francis Tucker, the prince's chaplain; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phipps, a young society couple; Marcel Palmaro, Monaco consul, and his wife; Mrs. Lytle Hull, and Mr. and Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Does crime take a holiday overnight in Esquimalt? An Esquimalt housewife makes this suggestion in a letter.

"We live in a house with . . . [illegible] apartments. The night before New Year's Eve there was a mad party going on upstairs.

"My husband got home from work dead-tired at 2 a.m. When he heard the noise going on upstairs he went up and asked them to please refrain from stamping their feet to the singsong, in which about 10 voices were joined.

"The fellow upstairs beats his wife frequently. They are a fairly young couple with a (young) son.

"About half an hour later, the husband upstairs was beating his wife in the room where their son had been sleeping. The noise, screaming and scuffling, along with heart-rending cries from the little boy, was unbearable.

"Now, here is my beef. My husband got up and phoned the Esquimalt police. He let their phone ring for five minutes steady and there was no answer.

"Next day we learned our neighbors next door had also phoned the Esquimalt police, also with no answer.

"Now, what's the score on the police force? I thought they were supposed to be available 24 hours a day. Or maybe they close for the night, and all disturbances, murders, accidents, etc., are supposed to wait another eight hours until they finally get the energy to open up.

"What if this guy had killed his wife? This really burns me up."

* * *

So the lady wrote. Probably she has real cause for complaint.

But the individual members of Esquimalt police force are not to blame for such lapses. They are few in number, and they can't be everywhere at once.

The fault lies with the policy-makers who starve the force of men and equipment to save money.

Wife-beating may not be classified as a major crime. Some twisted souls declare that it isn't a crime at all. A judge once said that wife-beating was all right as long as a man used a very small stick. Maybe the cadi was a cad. But you can't trap me into an argument on that subject.

But the wife-beating call might have been armed robbery or murder. And one life lost would cancel out any saving Esquimalt made by keeping its police force to a bare minimum.

This is false economy.

Secret Centre On Show

A thorough inspection of the secret provincial civil defence control centre, 10 miles outside Victoria, will be made today by 28 pharmacists undergoing a five-day defence orientation course.

Brig. G. A. McCarter, deputy provincial co-ordinator, will lecture on general defence organization with special reference to this province. Defence operations and control also will be explained in relation to the work expected from pharmacists.

The pharmacists from various points in the province will learn of their specific job in civil defence during an afternoon lecture by Prof. Finlay Morrison.

The "students" began their course yesterday at University school. Today's side trip will be during the morning only with classroom lectures resuming at 2 p.m. in the school.

Statements concerning national health supplies and a stockpiling program, along with information on distribution services are to be given during the afternoon by speakers.

French Reds Seek Aid of Socialists

PARIS (UP) — The French Communist party Friday night officially called on Socialists and radical Socialists supporting ex-premier Pierre Mendes-France to join in forming a left-wing government.

The offer was made in letters addressed to Socialist leader Guy Mollet and the president of the radical Socialist party, Edouard Herriot.

Both Mendes-France and the Socialists previously rejected similar Communists offers. Observers believed the latest proposal also would be spurned.

The letters called on both parties in Mendes-France "Republican front" to reach an understanding with the Communists "in line with the vote and the expectations of the majority of the population now."

In the election this week the Communists gained more than 50 seats in the national assembly where they will now have 150 deputies.

In their left-wing coalition offer, the Communists proposed a joint program calling for peaceful solution of the Algerian problem through negotiations, efforts to improve workers' conditions, and an international policy leading toward world disarmament.

Humidity Room Saves Children

VANCOUVER (CP) — A high humidity room, started in Children's Hospital six years ago by Dr. Harry Baker, has saved the lives of a number of young children.

This treatment of breathing disorders in the very young is believed to be unique in this country and colleagues refer to the room as "Dr. Baker's Room" as he found the initial $3,000 to make it possible.

After six years of operation the "gamble" has paid off by saving the young from strangulation because illness had robbed their bodies of large amounts of water.

In the room condensed water runs down tiled walls and lies in large pools on the terazzo floor. But despite this the children remain comfortably dry, and, more important, breathe freely and easily because of the soothing moisture.

What appears to be steam is really minute water droplets blown under pressure to maintain a constant 100 per cent humidity at 70 to 72 degrees.

Dr. Baker explained: "Sickness in a small child often causes dehydration and a narrowing in the throat around the larynx."

Fellow pediatricians said that some of their tiny patients would have had to undergo dreaded but not uncommon tracheotomy, surgically opening the neck to insert a breathing tube, if it hadn't been for the room. In fact, there has been only one such operation and the room speeded recovery in that case.

Garden Notes

Primrose 'Wanda' Early Bloomer

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Just about the earliest primrose to bloom in our part of the world is the little crimson-purple one we call affectionately by her first name, Wanda. The story of how Wanda arrived on the garden scene makes rather interesting reading.

About 35 years ago, a modest little primrose, Primula Juliae, emigrated from the Caucasus to England. Soon after she took up residence at her new home in Kew Gardens, it became apparent that the little lady from Russia was modest in appearance only.

BRED WELL

While most of the primrose family are rather fastidious in their choice of mates, Juliae was promiscuous to a shocking degree, and had children by primroses from all walks in life, from the highly-bred aristocrats of the greenhouse to those country bumpkins, the cowslips.

Juliae's offspring, known collectively as Julianas, gave us an entirely new race of primroses, very hardy and frost-resistant from the blood of their Russian mother, easy to grow, and singularly prolific bloomers. One of these, now growing happily in practically every garden in Victoria, was Wanda.

DOZENS OF USES

Wanda has dozens of uses in the garden. She is perfectly at home in the rock garden, as an edging plant, as ground cover for early-flowering bulbs, or for bedding purposes in small beds where low-growing plants are desired.

In our family, we dig her up when she has formed a few of her first buds, pot her up in a bowl of woodland moss, and bring her indoors to decorate our dining room table.

She has her faults, of course. Her complexion doesn't stand up so well under artificial light, fading from her normal rich purple to a rather unpleasant bluish tinge, but any plant which produces so many flowers through so many months of the year can be forgiven her little foibles.

PREFERS SUN

Wanda, like most of her primrose cousins, prefers a site where she can bask in all the sun that's going during the winter and early spring months, but where her delicate complexion will be shaded through the hottest parts of the summer.

Such a situation can be found to the north of a leaf-losing tree, where the bare branches in winter and the shade of the foliage in summer will create conditions to the liking of this little lady.

She isn't very fussy over the soil you give her, as long as it isn't too dry in summer, but she responds enthusiastically to a generous dressing of rotted leaves, and she has a particular fondness for the leaves of the beech and the birch.

If you fall in love with Wanda, as I have, and wish her to produce a lot of sisters, dig her up and divide her in early April, and pretty soon you'll have a whole harem of these little beauties.

New Licence Plates Gradually Appearing

New 1956 licence plates are appearing gradually on B.C. streets as the provincial motor vehicles branch prepares for another year of record sales.

In the present licence year, which ends Feb. 29, total of licences in the province has exceeded 400,000 and the number of private automobile plates has topped 300,000, both for the first time.

Officials predicted yesterday that sales for the next licence year will increase 8 per cent to 435,000 plates, of which 330,000 will be purchased for private passenger vehicles.

To avoid confusion of past years, the 80 motor vehicles branch offices throughout the province began selling the new plates Jan. 3, instead of the previous starting date of Feb. 1.

Persons with 1955 plates must buy the new issue before Feb. 29, or face police action which could result in fines ranging from $25 to $300. Persons buying licences for the first time must purchase 1955 plates until Feb. 21, at a "nominal fee," and will buy their new plates at the regular price of $22.50 at the same time.

YELLOW ON BLACK

Color of the new plates is yellow on black, the reverse of 1955.

Plates are again 12 inches long and six inches high, a uniform size followed by almost all of the motor vehicle agencies in Canada and the United States.

Officials forecast that 405,000 plates will be sold during the present year, 305,000 of them for private cars.

Totals to Nov. 30 were 393,669 plates, of which 294,720 were for private cars. However, plate No. 300,000 was issued to the Nelson office several months ago.

Only decrease in sales is in the motorcycle division, because, said the spokesmen, "youngsters like flashy pink cars now instead of red motorbikes."

Late next month, when sales become heavy, the branch in Victoria will hire extra staff to supplement two additional wicket keepers added a few weeks ago.

It was estimated that 60 per cent of the 7,800 station wagon owners in B.C. will find licence fees reduced from $25 to $22.50 this year. Forms are being sent to all owners, who are asked to declare if their vehicles are used for commercial purposes.

If not, they receive the reduction granted by the government at the 1955 session of the legislature because of a campaign by George Gregory, Victoria Liberal MLA.

City Police Seek Wage Increases

Nine working agreement changes affecting wages, allowances, holidays, overtime and other clauses were placed before the city police commission yesterday by Victoria Police Federal Union (TLC), representing about 90 men.

Wage increases varying from $11 to $28 monthly were asked for all rinks, the lowest for probationers now receiving $249 and the highest for second-class constables now being paid $292.

The requests were set on Vancouver rates and would mean 8.3 per cent or $26 monthly to a first-class constable.

A 40-hour work week for inspectors and pay for a person acting in a senior rank for eight hours or more were also suggested. Higher pay for an acting senior rank is now granted after 14 days.

A $30 increase was asked in the annual $150 clothing allowance to plain clothes men. Also requested was a telephone allowance at prevailing costs. None is given now in the uniform or detective branch.

Another request is for from two to three hours in the time allowed for court requirements.

Four weeks' annual holidays after 30 years' service was requested. Present scale is three weeks after 10 years.

No date was set for a future meeting, but both sides termed yesterday's session "amicable."

Ex-Official, A. V. Pineo Dies at 83

Funeral services were held yesterday for Avard Vernon Pineo, 83, who died in a Victoria nursing home Thursday.

Mr. Pineo entered the provincial government in January, 1913, and was legislative counsel in the attorney-general's department under many successive governments.

Before he retired, on Dec. 9, 1937, he completed the consolidation and re-arrangement of B.C. statutes.

Born in Nova Scotia, he came to B.C. about 40 years ago. When he retired he went to live in Portland, Ore. for some years, returning to Victoria about 12 years ago.

Surviving are a daughter, Eleanor, in Victoria, and a sister in Nova Scotia.

Canon O. L. Jull officiated at the ceremony at Chaplin's funeral home yesterday morning, with cremation at Royal Oak.

ONLY SYLVANIA
HAS THESE OUTSTANDING TELEVISION FEATURES

HALOLIGHT
Only Sylvania TV has Halolight—the application to TV of the universally-recognized principle of "Surround Light". Motion picture theatres for years have applied "Surround Light" to their screens for better, easier viewing. Now you can enjoy these advantages at home with Sylvania TV. Halo-Light relieves the harsh contrast between the very bright TV picture and normal room light — makes TV viewing easier on the eyes for you and your children. Halo-Light is the only scientific eye-comfort feature in TV today — makes viewing pleasanter — makes the picture appear larger, sharper and clearer.

POWER-PACKED CUSTOM CHASSIS
Sylvania engineered to bring new brilliance in today's TV screens. Gives sterling picture performance, even far away in the ultra-fringe areas of TV reception. The increased high voltage capacity assures greatly increased picture power for today's finest TV performance. Sylvania's chassis provides ALL the picture power the tube will deliver.

"STUDIO-CLEAR" SOUND SYSTEM
High fidelity speakers with extra magnets — acoustically tone-matched to the cabinet. Extra wide sonic range for crystal-clear tonal quality at all volume levels.

SILVER SCREEN 85 PICTURE TUBE
Another Sylvania exclusive development—The Aluminized Picture Tube is activated with real silver, increases picture brilliance up to seven times—in relative contrast of the blacks and whites, brings out many more in-between steps on which all picture detail depends. Silver Screen at assures new full-depth photographic reproduction of the TV picture.

Three-Day Siege Ends

Bottled 'Killer Smog' Samples May Aid in Fighting Menace

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's first big "killer smog" of the winter lifted Friday, leaving scientists with valuable samples they believe may set them on the way to ending the annual smog menace to life and property.

For the last three days, while smog brought traffic chaos to southern England, experts have been out in the shadowy London streets "bottling" specimens of the choking mixture of smoke and fog similar to that which led to the deaths of thousands of Britons with lung ailments in 1952.

Dr. George Elton, head of a fog dispersal project in south London, said: "We now believe we know about the contents of a smog. That means that we can reproduce it artificially and then have plenty of time to test methods of dispersing it instead of waiting until a smog actually builds up before we can experiment."

Civil defence workers armed with equipment for testing air pollution have brought in more than 150 samples to the department of scientific and industrial research.

Elton said that when these samples have been analyzed, an artificial smog will be made in the ministry of supply laboratory in Woolwich.

"Then the department will be able to use our artificial smog for tests on fog dispersal. Doctors will be welcome to use it too."

Results of this atmosphere on guinea pigs over a period of time can also be tested by British doctors doing research on lung trouble, he said.

The fog over London lifted Friday but weather experts predicted that it would return at night. It was considered unlikely, however, that the fog would be heavy enough to upset traffic.

New MLA Faces Wait for Seat

The successful candidate in Monday's Vancouver Centre by-election will not be able to take his seat in the legislature until a week after the official opening Jan. 17.

Speaker Thomas Irwin said yesterday it was expected the new member would be able to enter the legislature about Jan. 24.

Reason for the delay is that final election affidavits and certification of election cannot be completed until that time.

Aid Sought For Farmers Hit by Cold

B.C. Federation of Agriculture will spearhead a move to obtain national distressed loan legislation for farmers hard hit by weather, such as the November cold spell, that caused hundreds of thousands of dollars damage in B.C.

The B.C. group will ask the Canadian Federation to support the scheme at the annual convention to be held in Hamilton, Ont., from Jan. 23 to Jan. 27.

"We are not asking for handouts but we think machinery should be set up where people can rehabilitate themselves," said Charles Walls, secretary-manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture yesterday.

He said legislation was sought similar to that in effect in the United States.

There, any area can make application for low interest, long-term loans in the event of an unforseen hazard of nature.

"The area becomes a distressed loan area," he said.

"Farmers in the Fraser Valley face the future with uncertainty," continued Mr. Walls, "but their compatriots just south of the border can get these loans and are off the hook."

He said the Canadian Federation would be asked to support this move and, if it agrees, representations will be made to the federal cabinet.

A similar scheme was proposed in 1952 but no action was taken by the government.

"They didn't turn it down, they just never acted," he said.

Public Business—Openly Done

IF there is any better safeguard for the consideration and transaction of public business than that it can be openly done, one does not know of it. The new regime at the City Hall, which yesterday opened the first committee meeting held in the new year to the press, is not only restoring to the public a time-honored right but also ensuring for itself the protection of an informed public opinion. While there may be occasions here and there where civic boards may wish to make discretionary use of the prerogative of privacy, open consideration of public affairs is the way which builds confidence.

We agree heartily that the press in every sphere is under the companion obligations of accuracy and equivalent public responsibility; that, indeed, little effective public business could be done without straightforward transmission of such proceedings. No government could govern if there were none to know what it did. A civic administration must reach its citizens in some fashion before it can get their attention for even the smallest and simplest proposal it may make. So the role carried by the press in every free land remains an important and an exacting one. It is when public business is decided behind closed doors that the public may have due cause to complain.

One alderman said aptly at the opening of the new committee's meeting that the City had nothing to hide. Happily that is true. There has not been even the shadow of a skeleton in Victoria's civic cupboard for many a year. But the most practical assurance that public business is receiving sufficient attention is to show that being done. The open-door policy at the City Hall, once more restored, is in everyone's best interest and the peoples' right.

The Nub of the Matter

THE thesis of local labor circles that water powers, like all other natural resources, belong not to any one group for exploitation and development but to all the people at large is theoretically sound. It even has moral force behind it. It ties in of course with a major concept of socialist philosophy, the nationalization of everything that can be nationalized. This latter is certainly not an unmixed blessing but that point can be laid aside for the moment. Where the thesis of state exploitation of all natural resources falls to pieces is in the realm of the practical.

Actually natural resources of any kind are useless and without value unless they are developed; until this takes place they might as well not exist. As to their development the blunt truth is that only private enterprise is willing or able to undertake this on a large scale. The evidence is around for everyone to see. The present vast burgeoning of the Canadian economy and industrial effort derived in the main from the willingness of some individuals or groups to gamble a fortune on the chance of success. All huge undertakings tell the same story; the impetus comes from the private purse.

This is quite natural, as natural in fact as potential assets lying dormant in the ground. No government dare take the risk a private company might take, involving perhaps the outlay of millions of dollars on what may be sheer speculation, a sum not uncommon nowadays in connection with large-scale exploration. This risk is often taken by private concerns before there is proof that the venture will pay dividends.

No government can take such a chance; firstly because it does not have the money; secondly because it administers a public trust and thus cannot afford to gamble with public funds; and thirdly because to raise the monies needed it would have to increase sharply the general taxation. One can imagine the outcry if a provincial government announced it would risk 50, 100 or 200 millions of dollars on some project only in the hope that it might pay off sometime.

The irony in this too is that the very critics of private development of natural resources would cry to high heaven were their taxes doubled or trebled in order to underwrite the nationalized development they claim to favor; which in effect is to say they do not think these matters through. There should be some form of government control of the exploitation of natural resources, yes; but unless the public purse is to foot the bill for all such ventures—and it would be colossal and not always a sure thing—the development of these resources must come from private initiative and its willingness to venture at financial risk into the unknown. This is apart altogether from the merits or demerits of nationalization itself.

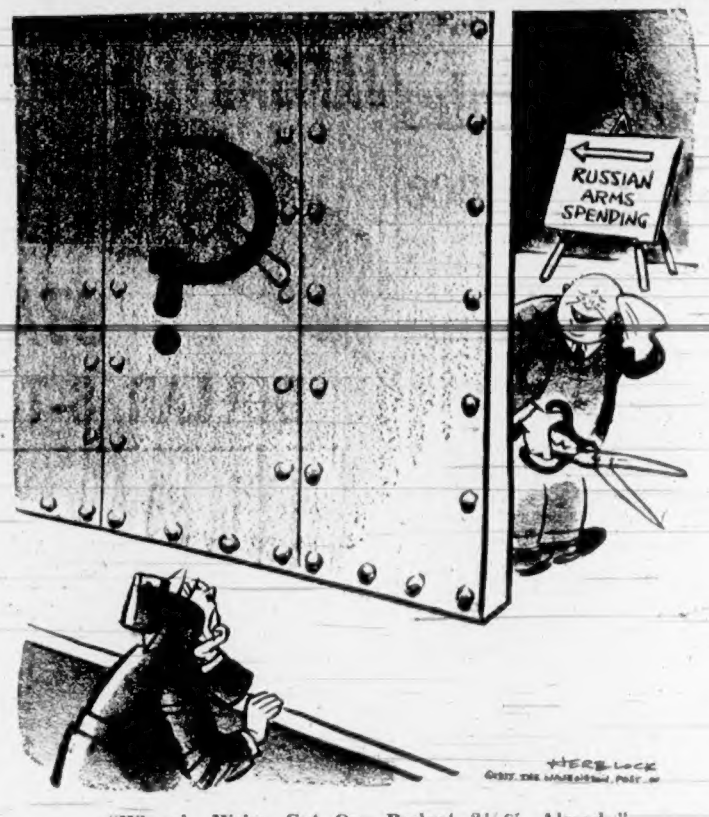

Pedestrians at Fault, Too

AMONG the many topics publicly discussed at the beginning of a new year the problem of how to make the streets and highways safer is receiving much prominence. The appalling total of traffic fatalities in North America during the holiday period was bound to focus attention on this question in any event. Then to bring the problem home, the southern region of Vancouver Island made a shocking start in 1956 with three fatal traffic accidents in the first four days.

Almost invariably the blame for this state of affairs is laid on the motoring public. Because that is where the blame largely belongs—and wholly in cases of collision between vehicles—there is a tendency to overlook, or to pass over too lightly, carelessness displayed by pedestrians. Last year about one-third of those killed in traffic in British Columbia were pedestrians, and in such instances the common reaction is to assume that the drivers were responsible. Some or possibly most of them undoubtedly were at fault, but there must have been cases in which the drivers, contrary to general belief, were innocent of any negligence.

This can be borne out by observation of the behavior of pedestrians in and around Victoria. Thoughtlessness is one of the chief faults. Impatience is another, displayed countless times every day in disregard of traffic lights. Arrogance is a third, notable because of the fact that arrogance has supposedly been an attribute of motorists only. "You can't touch me; I'm a pedestrian" seems to be the attitude of many these days, influenced no doubt by the fact that most of the traffic regulations are slanted in their favor. This protection seems to have gone to their heads, with the result that while there may still be selfish motorists in downtown traffic, they are probably outnumbered two or three to one by selfish walkers.

It is entirely proper that the police should concentrate on improving the standard of driving, but the conduct of pedestrians should not be neglected. Careful and considerate drivers—and by far the larger percentage of them are—deserve a break from pedestrian traffic, but right now they aren't getting it in downtown Victoria.

Interpreting the News

Eisenhower Delights U.K.

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

THE Eisenhower administration's new foreign aid policy fits in with what many Britons think is needed to meet the Russian challenge in the Middle East.

The British press has given this part of the President's State of the Union message a warm welcome, both as a potent weapon in the cold war and as an aid to continued Allied unity, through its contribution to long-range policy.

It is taken as reassurance that budget-balancing will not be permitted to interfere with American leadership or her determination to fight the cold war as long as it needs to be fought.

The President's pronouncement struck coincidentally with a conference of British officials on Middle East problems at which they are reported to have agreed on the need for a joint economic effort, building up the Baghdad Pact as a vehicle for preventing a Moslem lineup with Russia.

The Allies want no situation in which the Moslem attitude toward Israel is extended even farther than at present toward the West in general, with inevitable leaning toward Russia. To prevent that, Britain would like to join with Washington in a common economic aid program, co-ordinating and increasing the work now being done through various agencies.

The Times, London, expressed another feeling which has also been widely prevalent in the United States, that America and the Allies are too prone to react to pressure at specific spots and times dictated by Russian measures, instead of applying an unremitting pressure of their own.

"This would seem to mean going ahead with an extended economic program for all underdeveloped countries while trying to avoid day-to-day shifts in the quantity and quality of aid as the Communist threat to each country blows hot or cold," said The Times.

* * *

This relates, as Eisenhower also related his program, to recognition that the cold war cannot be won quickly, or by defensive measures. It also represents evaluation of Russian policy as one of economic and political warfare, with shooting war held in reserve in case of failure, or employed only between smaller nations for purposes of general disruption as may be possible now in the Middle East.

The Manchester Guardian recognizes the unpopularity in America of increased foreign expenditures, and the uncertainty the expected congressional fight will cause abroad, but remarks that "we should remember that in the end America generally delivers the goods."

Old Victoria

By FRANK KELLEY

AS a youngster who spent a lot of his foot-free time (60-odd years ago) exploring Victoria and its environs, we can say it did not look quite the same as it does today, even though a lot of the old charm persists. Wooden sidewalks prevailed along its dusty down-town streets and man-worn paths bordered most residences a few blocks from the business section. At that it seemed a gracious place, an early impression that was recalled a short time ago on reading a report of the Historical Society meeting when its president, Mr. R. E. Potter, had some uncomplimentary things to say concerning the manner in which modern contractors are changing the exterior appearances of old-time dwelling houses and mercantile establishments.

Either foot-free, walking or pushing a "bone-shaker" bicycle, the greatest danger on the business streets those days would be running into someone or getting a shower of water from a sprinkling cart on turning a corner en route to a ramble or ride through more pleasant streets with their many easy-to-look-at gardens, comfortable-looking cottages or residences aspiring to mansion dignity, even though falling a bit short of such rating.

* * *

Victoria could boast a fine type of eye-catching architecture along the business streets, too. Always the one-story string of iron-shuttered and doored buildings on lower Yates and along Wharf intrigued me, as did the rambling, pretentious warehouse of the Hudson's Bay Company on the latter street, and which one always thought would have been preserved as a museum devoted to relics of the company's early years on Vancouver Island.

We always thought the home of Sir James Douglas, which overlooked James Bay waters, might have been preserved to house relics of early Victoria too; but some in authority had other ideas and no attempt was made to utilize it in that way. However, on Elliott another old home we understood dated from Colonial times and for long the residence of dear old Doctor Helmcken is now maintaining its birthright, surrounded by palatial buildings, and contains some mementoes of the past.

* * *

In our rambles about we used to admire Armadale, Senator McDonald's place, situated in spacious grounds near the Outer wharves; homes of Captain John Irving, James Dunsmuir, Joseph Hunter and the Munro home in the James Bay area; houses like that of R. P. Rithet on Humboldt, D. R. Harris, Vancouver and Burdett; and on the other corner the home of Dr. I. W. Powell, were challenging; as were those of Robert Ward and W. P. Sayward in the Rockland Avenue and Moss Street sections; the Crease home on Fort; while out on Blanshard, resting on a rock, was the Walkem home.

Homes of Roderick Finlayson, builder of Fort Victoria, and the Grahams, Loewens and Erbs were in the Fountain area; and across Rock Bay bridge on Point Ellice were much-talked-of homes of Captain Grant and Judge O'Reilly; while farther along on Esquimalt and Gorge Roads lived the Pooleys, Snowdens and Crofts.

Architects for most of Victoria's old homes were Mallandaine, Teague and Teideman. They also designed many of the buildings standing in the business area today, like the mansard-roofed structure at Government and Yates. One of the best spots to get a glimpse of old Victoria architecture and buildings, the skyline of which has not been altered, except in one spot, is the block on the east side of Douglas between Yates and Johnson. The tallest bay-windowed building is the exception. The rest look just as they did in 1889.

Reports from Ottawa

LOOK for an announcement in the next few months that the navy's going to get a fleet of mosquito-size aircraft carriers.

Plans in the mill call for the construction of four vessels as helicopter carriers, to add to the RCN's power to detect and destroy enemy submarines. Whirlybirds are especially useful in anti-sub work because of their ability to hover, which enables them to use anti-submarine detection devices which cannot be used in fast-moving conventional aircraft.

The program likely will be on a crash basis—or as close to crash as our lackadaisical shipyards ever get—in light of the warnings of Russian submarine strength which emanated from the NATO Council of Ministers' meeting in Paris last month. Latest NATO estimate puts the number of long-range Soviet subs at 400.

* * *

The mosquito carriers will be only that in comparison with the navy's light fleet carriers—the Magnificent, in service now, and the Bonaventure, being built in Belfast. The latter is 19,000 tons and 700 feet long; the Maggie slightly smaller.

The helicarriers will in fact be destroyer escorts adapted to a new task. The St. Laurent, the only destroyer escort of the 14 ordered which is yet in service, is a 366-foot ship displacing 2,600 tons.

The program, based on the destroyer escort, is a testimonial to the fine qualities which the St. Laurent has displayed as a warship since she was commissioned two months ago. She is the finest ship in the navy, and has won the admiration of British and American naval officers who have inspected her. Canadian-designed and built, the St. Laurent embodies Canadian progress in naval design and constructional know-how since the fiasco of the first six Canadian minesweepers. Due to design errors, the first 'sweepers were liable to become magnetic in a heavy sea—a distinct disadvantage when there were magnetic mines around. So the government gave them to NATO.

A logical development in the evolution of the RCN into a small-ship navy specializing in anti-sub and coastal patrol work would be to get rid of the two obsolete cruisers, the Ontario and the Quebec. Their main role now is training officers and crews. When the navy has its full complement of destroyer escorts, helicarriers, minesweepers and its new light fleet carrier, the cruisers will be even more ornamental than they are now.

Another would be construction of a second icebreaker, a sister ship to the Labrador. It was short-sightedness on the part of the navy, plus timidity in asking treasury board for money, that two were not built simultaneously when the Labrador was laid down. That way, important savings could have been made in construction costs.

The American Driver Excels

(From The Peterborough Examiner)

THIS area is a favorite resort of American tourists so we have the opportunity to observe the way Americans drive in Canada. On the average they drive more slowly than our own people; they are Canadian cars, not American, which whizz along at 70 and 80 miles an hour.

The care with which American drivers stay close to our 50 mph speed limit is noticeable. We have also been able to observe that the American driver is more skilled than the average Canadian driver. He can handle his car expertly, is careful to ensure that it is maintained in good working order, and he knows the rules of the road.

You seldom see an American driver straddling two lanes of a highway, or pulling into the centre of an intersection in order to turn right. Nor does an American driver neglect his rear-view mirror on a dual-lane highway.

Canadians must blame themselves, not the Americans, for their high rate of accidents.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

THE Christmas cards will now have been either thrown out or tied up in tidy packages and stashed away in a cupboard until next December, when they will serve as a rough guide as to whom to send out cards.

Rough guide is right. For somewhat less than 5 per cent of the cards bear the addresses of the senders. If the greeting card industry would launch a campaign to promote the inclusion of addresses on Christmas cards, they would be serving a high purpose. Our Christmas cards would then function as directories of all our friends and relations, and apart from being a great convenience next Christmas, could be referred to time after time through the year. I have a friend by the name of Jim Smith. I don't know his initials, and haven't the faintest idea where he lives. To look up Jim Smith in the telephone directory would be a hopeless enterprise. Dozens and dozens of our well-known acquaintances whom we call by their first names have initials that do not reveal their identity in directories. To get the address of our out-of-town friends, let alone some of our blood relations, involves a laborious search and frequent bafflement.

Those who have their Christmas cards specially printed with their names should be urged to include their addresses. And those of us who buy ready-printed cards could surely add one line under our signatures.

Each year, I get two or three Christmas cards that are unsigned. It is very intriguing to get an anonymous Christmas card. It sets you speculating on which of your forgetful friends it might have been who was in such a Christmas tizzy that he or she forgot to sign the card. But one of the three is always from a special friend of mine who sends out 40 to 50 beautiful Christmas cards to all his friends and relations, and makes it a deliberate point never to sign them.

"Why sign it?" he insists. "A pile of cards comes in the mail. You open them and glance hastily through them. Not one in 50 of us could sit looking at the cards arrayed up along the mantel and name 25 per cent of the people who sent them. I send anonymous cards simply in order to wish my friends well. I feel good wishing them happiness. If they have to guess who it is from, maybe they will guess it is I. That is better than being forgotten up there on the mantel."

On the Record

Competitive Co-Existence

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

A QUESTION repeatedly asked me since my return from Moscow is: Does Russia anticipate war?

The official attitude is that the Soviets do not want war but will accept it if it is waged against them, and that it will prove more disastrous to the West than to the Communist world. One does not hear the view expressed there, as it is in America, that a thermo-nuclear war would be the end of civilization on this planet. But it would certainly, in the Russian view, mean the end of the capitalist system.

* * *

However, Soviet leaders believe as an article of immutable faith that the capitalist system is doomed anyhow and that Communism need not wage war on its own behalf to achieve that outcome.

The Soviet Union is protected in the West for the first time in Russian history by a solid bloc of politically and militarily integrated alliances from the Baltic to the Black Sea. Her eastern frontiers are protected by China, and although rifts are potential there, they can still be rifts within the family.

Soviet leaders are not so naive as to think that the West is contemplating a head-on aggression upon so huge a power bloc with so dispersed a population and industry. If the West had ever contemplated a "preventive war," it would certainly have struck when Stalin died. Russia was leaderless, and the people (a note of intelligence I picked up in Russia) in a near-panic. For having been told repeatedly that America was preparing an aggressive war, and also that all the wisdom, strength and power in Russia were incorporated in the great Stalin, it was logical for the people to fear "now it's coming!"

* * *

In Leningrad (with its western exposure) apprehension was particularly acute. When nothing happened there was intense relief, certainly among the people and probably in the hierarchy. The more conciliatory (or formally polite) attitude that subsequently developed toward America may have reflected in part the recognition of the leaders that one should not cry "wolf" too often.

Soviet leaders do not employ the phrase "cold war" except to denounce it, which is smart of them. Neither "cold" nor "war" is an attractive word. The U.S. State Department really needs a department of semantics. The Russians speak of peaceful but competitive co-existence, which makes international politics sound like a harmless but exhilarating sports event. But its object is to weaken the Soviet's competitors by diplomacy. And in this trade is now beginning to assume an increasingly important role.

The new economic policy of the Soviets in Asia and the Middle East is a formidable weapon because, unfortunately, it is often better suited to the realities of economically backward countries than is our own. "Trade not aid" was a slogan coined by our own allies.

* * *

The trade deal with Egypt is illustrative. The Soviets are constantly improving their weapons and replacing even quite modern ones with better models. They therefore have a surplus (within the Communist industrial area) of even jet planes to get rid of. But they are not otherwise plagued by over-production. They are buyers. They get around such problems as convertibility of currency by straight barter deals. Since the state has a foreign trade monopoly no private interests need be considered. In Egypt's case they sell weapons for cotton. Egypt's chief export crop which she has great difficulty in selling elsewhere.

Russia attaches to this deal no political conditions whatever. She doesn't demand or suggest a military alliance. But the deal automatically establishes a new political condition simply by detaching Egypt from dependence on the West.

* * *

With Egypt within her sights as a sovereign state to buy and sell where and on what terms she pleases there is not a single legal ground for Western interference. Nor is there a convincing moral ground in a world that is armed to the teeth—as Egypt certainly has not been. So all our leaders can do is to deplore and interpret the deal as a threat to the peace in the strained Middle East situation.

But it is not a threat to the peace of the Soviet Union or of the United States or any great power. Nor can the United States be acquitted of having pursued policies that were bound to create or contribute to the tensions. Nor does all the deploring and denouncing do anything except make Egypt and her Arab associates madder at us than they already were.

Letters to the Editor

Speed Monsters

In the issue of Jan. 4, there was a letter to the editor captioned "Highway Murder" and signed by Fred Brooks of Duncan, with the contents of which I most heartily agree.

It would appear to me to be the only logical solution for remedying this constant increase in slaughter on our streets and highways.

Indeed it is not always the fault of the one who drives, but more, much more the fault of the authorities that permit, first, the manufacture of such speed monsters; secondly, the constant high pressure of sales, accentuating the power, plus speed and economy; and thirdly, permitting the use of such vehicles on the road without restricting their speed.

My suggestion would be that when a licence is furnished the driver, an inspection be made of the vehicle and if found to be in this category, insist on a governor being installed before a licence is granted to the driver of that car.

If the manufacturers cannot be restricted in supplying such demons, then the above preventive should in all cases be adopted.

Gulf Islands Seat

The Gulf Islands residents as a whole should be acutely concerned with the following statements which will deal with our present provincial electoral district.

The Gulf Islands were for many years concerned in political affairs with North Saanich. It was then known as the North Saanich and Gulf Islands riding. The late Col. Macgregor Macintosh was the last member of this riding to sit in the provincial legislature. Sometime during the late 1930s it was considered expedient to the Liberal cause to create certain electoral districts for the purpose of assured seats for those Liberal members running for office therein. North Saanich-Gulf Islands was one of those unfortunate areas which received such doubtful attention. It was divided, North Saanich going into Saanich proper—which seems right. The Gulf Islands part was included with Nanaimo and became known as the present Nanaimo and Gulf Islands riding.

From that time to date, we of the islands have been represented by two members, Mr. George Pearson and Dr. Harry Giovando, present MLA. Both these men, Mr. Pearson, former Liberal MLA, and Dr. Giovando, independent, were and are excellent men. Mr. Pearson, during his time of office was most helpful to the islands, and Dr. Giovando is most interested and helpful in all our problems.

However, both these men will agree that the Gulf Islands should be a separate riding with a member representing them solely in the legislature. We have adequate population for such. There are ridings in the province, with less population than we have, with their own MLAs.

It must be obvious to all residents of the islands, and to those in the government political body, that as long as we remain attached to a city riding, which is growing fast, we are going to get the short end of the stick as regards money appropriations and attention to the many problems that only pertain to the islands economically and structurally.

The time, therefore, has come for the residents of these Gulf Islands to give their member, Dr. Giovando, instructions so that he may bring argument before the premier at the next session of the legislature.

The different associations should feel free to advocate this to the residents. It is not necessarily a political question, but more an economic necessity for our growth and livelihood in the future.

As the legislature will sit shortly, let us, the Gulf Islands residents, start the New Year with a determined effort to acquire the stature in the legislature that they rightly deserve.

Pipes Frozen; Driver Boiling

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UP) — Miss Slakis was chased by police after she saw her ex-boy friend out with another woman and rammed his car.

But she told officers she was hurrying home to fire the furnace so the pipes wouldn't freeze.

Helen Slakis, 36, paid a $117.95 fine yesterday for driving through five stop signs and two traffic lights, driving in the wrong lane and driving the wrong way on a one-way street.

Apple Prices Given Support

BY TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — The Agricultural Prices Support Board has been authorized to provide a support price to apple growers on the basis of a minimum average return to producers of one cent a pound delivered at plant or local warehouse, for Canada fancy or better grades of the main dessert varieties produced in 1955.

Agriculture Minister James Gardiner also said that while Nova Scotia was the only province which had applied so far, "If a sufficient number of apple growers in commercial growing areas in any other province were interested . . . their application would receive consideration."

On the Great Lakes

Grain Cargo Rate Fix Suggested

OTTAWA (CP) — A suggestion that Great Lakes shipping companies are banding together to fix cargo rates on western Canadian grain was heard Friday by the royal commission on coastal shipping.

Dr. E. C. Hope, economist for the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, indicated he has taken up the question with the anti-combines branch of the justice department.

Dr. Hope, delivering the federation's final argument before the commission, was attacking claims of some organizations including vessel-owning groups that restrictions should be placed on the entry of British shipping into water commerce between Canadian ports.

The economist said that on the lakes "they're scared the British won't go along" on cargo rates.

"There has been no free competition among Great Lakes carriers," he said.

Mr. Justice W. F. Spence of the Ontario Supreme Court, commission chairman, interjected:

"Maybe you should make such statements on Wellington street (where the justice department is located)."

"I have been in touch with them not so long ago," Dr. Hope replied.

After the hearing, he said he had discussed the matter with an official of the combines branch. He had received no indication that an investigation would be launched.

Mr. Justice Spence said the federation's evidence did not prove there was no competition among lake carriers.

"You have to be very careful of such allegations," he admonished.

Dr. Hope said common rates are charged by Canadian lake vessels for haulage east from the Lakehead.

Stratford Group Shows $1,000,000 'Home' Plan

TORONTO (CP) — After three years under a tent the Stratford Shakespearean Festival has hammered out plans for a permanent copper roof.

The Festival Foundation Friday unveiled at a press conference a scale model of the projected $1,000,000 theatre with which it hopes to replace the canvas auditorium it has used since 1953.

The theatre, to be completed in time for rehearsals for the 1957 season, would be a 34-sided theatre-in-the-round surmounted by a tent-like roof overlaid with copper.

The building, wood-panelled over a steel frame, would stand on the spot now occupied each summer by the tent. The architects were Rounthwaite and Fairfield of Toronto.

The foundation also named Col. M. C. C. Meighen, a Toronto investment broker, to head the campaign. The drive will aim at raising most of the money by public subscription.

KEEP APRON STAGE

The scale model shows the theatre would retain its distinctive apron stage. A gallery for added seating space, an entrance foyer containing restroom and ticket-selling facilities and increased space back stage would be added.

The auditorium would measure 170 feet in diameter and be 40 feet high at its peak.

"The apron stage is a tiered platform faced on three sides by the audience. No curtains are used to introduce or end the action. The actors walk on or exit from the back, or by one of several aisles leading through the audience to the stage.

Architect R. C. Fairfield said the proscenium has been enlarged, however, and the increased space backstage will make the theatre adaptable for the more common type of operatic or theatrical presentation.

Provision of the gallery will increase seating to 2,100 from the 1,927 that can be seated in the tent.

Mr. Fairfield said new soundproofing and air-conditioning equipment would be built in. Tent audiences had complained of high temperatures and outside noise.

Precision, Rhythm Highlight Show

Liberace Forced To Call Police

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Liberace had to call the police Friday to handle crowds that formed outside his fabulous home to watch CBS prepare for a TV appearance by the pianist.

The TV network sent 30 technicians to set up the cameras inside the house in suburban Sherman Oaks.

"The doors were all open so about 100 other people wandered in just to look around," said the pianist. "Because of the dangerous high tension wires, the officers came to keep people away."

Peck's New Wife 'Wonderful Girl'

BY ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — The girl who won handsome screen hero Gregory Peck wears simple clothes, knows how to cook French food and just wants to stay home and take care of her husband.

"I like everything about her, she's a wonderful girl," summed up the newlywed actor today.

Peck is back in his gray flannel suit, for the 20th Century Fox movie of the same name, after one of the quietest wedding in Hollywood history and one of the shortest honeymoons.

Peck never admitted right up to the day of the ceremony that he planned to marry the French newspaper writer, although she'd been his companion for two years. The tall star and Veronique Hassani drove with his mother and stepfather to a little town near his ranch in the Santa Ynez valley for the ceremony.

Only a few of his ranch friends attended. After a New Year's Eve party, the Pecks drove to his simple house on his cattle ranch for a two-day honeymoon. This week he was back at work in "The Gray Flannel Suit," his first movie job in 11 months. Their only wedding party was a dinner with five other friends at Chasen's restaurant Wednesday night.

"We wanted to have it quiet," was his understatement.

What does Peck like about his bride?

"She knows clothes, and dresses very simply," he said. "She's also quite a good horsewoman. She's attractive and intelligent.

Mrs. F. Chappel Leads Old Age Pensioners

Victoria Old Age Pensioners (No. 5) group has elected Mrs. F. Chappel president for 1956, with the following additional officers: A. E. Grafton, first vice-president; J. C. Williams, second vice-president; W. R. Hunter, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. S. Kendall, reporter to "The Pensioner"; Mrs. Ethel Murchison, publicity.

The annual report showed membership at 300, with finances sound.

A vote of thanks was passed for those who helped make the annual banquet at St. John's hall a success and special recognition was given the women of Victoria Moose who serve tea at each group meeting.

The meeting closed with entertainment.

'Fish Bread' Predicted As Food for Canadians

OTTAWA (CP)—Fish bread is the latest thing on the scientific menu.

Scientists attending the annual meeting of the fisheries research council were told Friday that Canadians may some day be eating bread made from flour enriched with proteins from the products of the sea.

Dr. Henry Fougere of Halifax, chief of the Atlantic fisheries experimental station, reported that his staff already has made small amounts of such fish protein. Mixed with ordinary flour in laboratory tests, it produced bread of "good appearance and taste."

The protein product, made at the Halifax station from fish flesh, was white, odorless and tasteless. A sample left exposed to light and air for six weeks showed no change in taste or color.

Dr. Fougere said bread baked with flour containing 10 to 20 per cent of fish protein has an agreeable odor.

STUDY COSTS

The question now was the cost of production. This was being evaluated in pilot plant assays.

Dr. Fougere also reported on the work his scientists are doing to assure Canadians of sea products as fresh as the day they were taken from the ocean thousands of miles away.

Among other things scientists went to sea aboard fishing vessels to offer advice and try out new ways of handling and storing fish on vessels. They had devised ways to grade haddock and had studied use of antibiotics as an aid in permitting longer storage.

TORONTO (CP)—A minor fire broke out in the Barclay Hotel in downtown Toronto Friday forcing 50 guests, including former heavyweight champion Joe Louis, to flee. Firemen said the blaze, started by a careless smoker, caused $2,500 damage to a room. Louis was in Toronto to referee a wrestling match.

If Necessary, Raise Taxes To Meet Wages, Says Union

NORTH COWICHAN Out-side workers were told by Reeve C. A. P. Murison Friday that the municipality desired to keep up with "good employers" but would not blaze any trails in setting higher than normal wage rates.

He reminded B. F. Goodeman, union representative, that the council had to account to ratepayers and could not be free with their money.

Mr. Goodfellow replied that the employees of a municipality should not be asked to subsidize ratepayers. "The men must progress and need more money. If necessary to do that, the taxpayers must pay more taxes."

Present scale runs from $1.43 an hour for laborers, to $1.98 for shovel operators.

COURTENAY—First occupants of the new Glacierview Home for elderly persons will probably be in residence by Jan. 15, Ald. W. C. Moore, chairman of the city council health committee, announced yesterday.

Arena Plan Discarded

COURTENAY—Plans for a $250,000 arena has been discarded "at least temporarily" as being too costly for the district, officials of the Upper Island Sports Booster Club said yesterday.

The officials now are attempting to determine cost of a two-building unit which would include a six-sheet curling rink and an arena with room for 2,200 persons.

DUNCAN—A coroner's jury Thursday ruled that the first traffic death on southern Vancouver Island in 1956 was an accident.

Mrs. Kathleen Larson, 42, of Crofton, a former Victoria resident, died in King's Daughters' hospital Tuesday from severe shock and other injuries suffered in an automobile accident Sunday.

Police said a car driven by her husband skidded on ice three miles south of Chemainus and struck a tree. Both Mr. and Mrs. Larson were thrown from the car, but he was not injured.

VIEWS OF SPORT

By Red Smith

The television camera glanced aside late in the Rose Bowl football game, and the next thing the viewers knew, a penalty for "unsportsmanlike conduct" had placed the ball one yard from the UCLA goal line. Mel Allen caught and correctly interpreted referee's hand signal but neither he nor his audience had seen the crime committed. In the paper next morning, the wire service didn't report whether somebody had been caught with [illegible] merely commented on an official's antecedents.

After Michigan State's winning field goal, the kicker's jubilant colleagues fell upon him and struck him repeated blows but the camera quickly averted its gaze, turning from the most appealing scene of the whole afternoon to stare moodily at the score board. In justice to Mel Allen and his spotters, it should be said that he named the kicker immediately and clearly as Dave Kaiser, and his audience did not share the press box confusion over the young demi-god's identity.

Had Mr. Jesse Abramson been present—he was, instead, covering the Orange Bowl game in Miami—misapprehension would have been cleared up swiftly. The moment the public address system declared that Gerry Planutis had made the field goal, Mr. Abramson would have lifted his voice, and by the time he set it down, all doubts would have been resolved.

Not so many years ago, the football reporter paced the side line with pencil and notebook identifying the key player for himself. Now each play is described over a loudspeaker in the press box, official statistics and substitutions are provided, and charts and multigraphed play-by-play accounts. Self-reliance is out of style. Millions saw Dave Kaiser win the game; only those present got his name wrong.

Joe Louis' Debts

A few days ago a letter was received from a lady urging that sports fans subscribe money to pay Joe Louis' tax debts. She enclosed a dollar, explaining that Joe had given her and her family entertainment worth far more than that. There must be many other fans, she wrote, who would be equally happy to contribute.

It was a warm-heatred act but this is not the agency to create such a fund. Indeed, it is to be doubted that public charity is the proper solution of Louis' financial problems. For that matter, it's probably impracticable, for if Joe owes a million, how many more millions would have to be collected and taxed before he would be even?

In a "Saturday Evening Post" article under his name, the former heavyweight champion reports that his unpaid taxes now exceed $1,000,000. The earning power that grossed more than four and a half million in purses is gone.

Fans read such figures in utter bewilderment. "How can this happen?" they ask. "The rest of us can't stand off the tax men like that. What happens to the earnings of so many fighters, anyhow?"

Babes in Finance

Some fighters, of course, are cheated by their managers. Some find the life of a champion an extraordinarily expensive existence. Today a boxer's take-home pay is only a fraction of the purse. If, for example, Rocky Marciano takes three bouts a year, chances are that in the third match he's fighting for about 25 cents on the dollar. The popular estimate of a fighter's income is wildly inaccurate.

Some live on advances from the promoter and spend their pay before they get it. Some who are honestly handled and don't squander what they are earning, lose it later because they are untrained in business.

Lew Tendler, the great Philadelphia lightweight, often remarks that he took a million dollars out of the ring and blew it in New Jersey real estate that couldn't be located at high tide. He has done all right as a restaurateur.

Benny Leonard took better care of his title against Tendler than his money. Retiring undefeated in 1924, he was back as a welterweight seven years later. In the early and middle 1940s, Beau Jack didn't trouble to take off his pants with less than $100,000 in Madison Square Garden. He's back as he started, shining shoes.

It Still Reads One Million Dollars

Ray Robinson has a reputation as a keen businessman who kept tabs daily on his Harlem enterprises, even when he was away in training camp. When he regained the middleweight championship from Bobo Olson last month, the government attached his purse for a tax lien of more than $80,000, and he had other financial worries.

Sometimes the taxpayer takes deductions in his return which are disallowed later, when he's not holding. Evidently that's one source of Louis' troubles, but—well, a million dollars!

The average man's income is earned over a period of many years. The professional athlete gets his fast, reaches his peak early and drops swiftly out of the upper brackets. In simple justice, it would seem that his tax schedule might be adjusted so that he had to carry no more than his fair share of the burden.

Needed More than Horseshoes

Mapping their battle plans before last night's annual basketball game at Victoria High School against the Vic High Totems, the school's All-Time Greats adopted the strategy of "trust in luck" and gave this horseshoe a caress for an extra measure of good fortune. However, the former hoop stars found the system wasn't enough to make up for the energy and agility of youth and dropped a 79-61 decision. Oldtimers, left to right, are Chuck Chapman, Ollie Goldsmith, Red Martin, Porky Andrews and Busher Jackson.

Cougars in Top Form; Shut Out Royals, 4-0

By JIM TANG

Continuing their alert hockey, Victoria Cougars last night handed the New Westminster Royal a 4-0 blanking at Memorial Arena to move within 10 points of the Vancouver Canucks, western division leaders in the Western Hockey League.

Royals, losing their fifth straight and going through their sixth consecutive game without victory, are now four points behind the Cougars and only four points ahead of the resurgent Seattle Americans, who have three games in hand.

Cougars, back at the .500 mark again, have a game in hand on the Royals and have played two less games than the Canucks, who play here on Tuesday night.

WESTERN DIVISION	GP	W	L	T	GF	GA	Pts
Vancouver	40	24	16	0	140	109	48
VICTORIA	38	18	18	2	110	104	38
N. Westminster	39	16	21	2	131	141	34
Seattle	36	14	20	2	109	133	30
EASTERN DIVISION
Calgary	38	26	12	0	177	130	52
Winnipeg	41	23	17	1	134	127	47
Edmonton	42	21	19	2	136	163	44
Saskatoon	36	14	21	3	108	134	31
Brandon	38	11	23	4	103	128	26

Last night's scores: New Westminster 0 at VICTORIA 4; Brandon 1 at Winnipeg 2; Seattle 4 at Vancouver 2; Saskatoon 2 at Edmonton 4.

Next games: Tonight, Saskatoon at Calgary; Winnipeg at Brandon; Seattle at New Westminster.

ALL PLAY WELL

Last night's was a team triumph with the Cougars icing three dangerous forward lines, all of them checking back to keep the Royals from getting any kind of sustained attack under way.

Victoria's defence also cleared well and Marcel Pelletier never dropped his guard for a minute to fully earn his fifth shutout. Pelletier gained ground on Vancouver's Ray Mikulan in the goalkeeping averages, the Cougar net minder now owning a 2.71 average and Mikulan at 2.65.

Three of Victoria's goals came from the Eddie Olson-Wayne Brown-Jim Robertson forward line, playing together for the second time this season. Brown got two, his 13th and 14th, as the canny Olson kept feeding him passes while Robertson, working into the line-up better every game, got his third goal. He also drew two assists.

KILBURN GETS 26TH

Colin Kilburn got the other goal, his 26th, on a play with Doug Macauley and the Cougars' top line turned in a good effort. Royals elected to play their Bob Love-Gordie Fashoway-Blinky Boyce unit against Anderson's line much of the time and the Victoria threesome blanketed the main Royal threat completely. Anderson and Kilburn also did the penalty-killing for the four Victoria infractions and Royals didn't get close often with the odd man.

Not in the scoring summary but holding up their end were Don Chiupka, Paul Strasser and Skip Teal, who returned to action to play left wing with the two rookies. This combination came close several times and didn't weaken the club at all when it was on the ice.

Royals were without Bob Bergeron, their veteran mainstay on defence, while the Cougars were without Ray Ceresino.

Brown got the first goal at 7.07, getting a pass from Olson in close and beating Bev Bentley easily. Then Kilburn and Macauley worked in with Kilburn tipping in Macauley's shot.

GOOD ACTION

That ended the scoring until the third period, although both clubs came close often in a game which provided fine entertainment for the 2,582 fans.

Brown doused Royal hopes of a comeback 40 minutes to the second after his first goal on a neat play which ended with a somewhat lucky goal. He took the puck from Robertson, fed to Olson just in time to avert an offside, then turned in front of the goal just in time to deflect Olson's return pass past Bentley with his leg or skates.

Robertson stepped out of the penalty box to pick up a clearance and go in alone for the final score.

Warriors Nip Regals For Sixth Straight; Canuck Streak Ended

Winnipeg Warriors and Seattle Americans last night continued to make gains in the Western Hockey League.

Rolling along in fine style and getting on top in the close ones, the Warriors ran their winning streak to six games by nosing out Brandon Regals, 2-1.

Americans, who now have three wins and a tie in their last five games, tripped the Canucks, 4-2, at Vancouver. In another game, Edmonton Flyers got past Saskatoon Quakers, 4-2, at Edmonton.

CLOSE TO STAMPS

Warriors are now only five points behind Calgary Stampeders in the Eastern Division while Americans are back in the playoff scramble in the Western Division, four points behind New Westminster, but with three games in hand on the third-place Royals.

Canucks have won 10 straight on their home ice and had a three-game win streak when they ran into the improved Americans, who had veteran Ollie Dorohoy back in action after an absence of 11 games.

Americans were never headed, taking a 2-0 lead as rookies Ross Watson and Bev Bell clicked in the first period. Rookie Bruce Carmichael cut the lead in two in the last minute of the period and Earl Johnson scored in the last seconds of the third period after Val Fonteyne and Alex Kuzma had extended Seattle's lead to 4-1.

CHADWICK BRILLIANT

A crowd of 3,687 fans saw the Warriors take a 2-0 lead at Winnipeg, then hold of the desperate Brandon club, which found goalie Ed Chadwick in brilliant form as they pressed for the tying goal. In the last two minutes, Chadwick stopped five ticketed shots as the Regals went on the attack with six players. Chadwick also held the Warriors up in the first period.

There were 3,069 fans on hand at Edmonton, where the Flyers lost a 2-0 lead, then won it in the third period on a goal by Chuck Holmes, an improving rookie.

Edmonton's last goal was fired into the Saskatoon net just as the final buzzer went. It took referee Joey Johns five minutes to decide that the score counted. Don Poile got the goal and Holmes and Jerry Melynk got assists while they were in the dressing room.

Sonshine Again Blasted

Paper Says UCLA Fullback Signed to B.C. Lion Contract

VANCOUVER (CP)—Don Mackenzie, president of the B.C. Lions in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, Friday again charged "fantastic" dealings in Los Angeles by Toronto Argonaut manager Harry Sonshine.

Mackenzie, who with Lions general manager Phil Webb returned Thursday night from a southern scouting expedition, said Sonshine had approached most players contacted by Mackenzie with overbids of $1,000 to $2,000.

"It's fantastic," he said. "Every boy on the East team, the West team and the Michigan State team had been contacted by Sonshine.

"He tells them 'Don't sign with anyone else. I'll give you $1,000 or $2,000 more than anyone else.'

"But he may have overplayed his hand," said Mackenzie. "At San Francisco he made offers to 30 players . . . including expense-paid visits to Toronto with their wives for some of them.

"By the time they (the players) finished comparing notes, they began to get suspicious," said the Lions president. "They know we have an import limit up here and they all want to be reasonably certain that they have a chance of making whatever team they go to.

"He (Sonshine) certainly isn't doing Canadian football any good," Mackenzie charged.

He said he had signed four players but declined to name them for the time being because the players had asked him not to.

Mackenzie said he was confident head coach Clem Crowe, returning from Mobile, Ala., had signed six more players following Saturday's Senior Bowl game there.

"And one boy we talked to," Mackenzie disclosed, "said he wanted to see Vancouver before he signed. There's an excellent chance that we'll fly him in here this weekend."

Meanwhile, The Herald says Doug Peters, fullback for the University of California at Los Angeles, has signed a tryout contract with the Lions and that veteran end Mac Speedie, 34, received permission to try out with the team this summer.

Speedie came to Lions last season from Saskatchewan Roughriders but suffered torn ligaments in the third game of the season and was sidelined thereafter.

Mangrum Gains Lead In Los Angeles Open

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum of the old guard of golf signalled a challenge to win the rich Los Angeles Open for the fourth time Friday when he whacked out a five-under-par 66 to lead the way through the first round of play in the $30,000 winter classic.

Mangrum, now 41 and returning to major contention after a nine-month layoff, set the pace with five birdies for a score of 34-32—66 for the par 36-35—71 that faced the field of 155 at the Rancho municipal golf course.

Mangrum, still bothered by rib injuries that put him on the sidelines last spring, won the Los Angeles Open in 1949-51-53, and he played Friday like the dashing Mangrum of those years.

Styled now as the squire of Apple Valley, Calif., where he makes his home, the former U.S. open champion held a bare one-stroke lead over his nearest contenders.

They were Lionel Hebert of Erie, Pa., with 34-33; Long John Barnum, Belmont, Mich., 34-33, and Cecil Harris a little known, 42-year-old club professional from nearby Whittier, 35-32.

Twenty-nine pros bettered par under skies that were bright and warm in mid-day and chilly in early morning and late afternoon.

Years Start To Show As Vets Beaten Again

Porky Andrews' Vic High Totems upset tradition for the second straight year last night by downing the Vic High All-Time Greats, 79-61, in their annual clash at the Fernwood gym.

Such stars of former years as Chuck Chapman, Albert "Red" Martin, Doug Peden, Ollie Goldsmith, Busher Jackson, Ian McKeachie and Andrews turned out for the ninth playing of the traditional classic, but fell before the youth and speed of the powerful Totems.

For the first seven years that the game was played the old-timers dug deep into their reserves of skill and stamina to turn back the determined Totems. However, the Totems pulled a little closer with each passing year, and finally put an end to the old-timers' dominance with a thrilling 55-53 win last year.

Last night, victory came a lot easier. The Totems used their youth and agility to virtually control play under both backboards, and were never behind in the scoring.

Totems led, 18-12, at the end of the first quarter, and by half time had increased the margin to eight points at 44-36. Andrews' charges outscored the old timers, 20-10, in the third quarter and both teams netted 15 points in the last quarter.

Tommy English and Art Chiko dropped in 18 points apiece for the Totems, but Andrews topped all scorers with a 23-point effort for the losers. Peden netted 14 points, Chapman got 10, Jackson scored eight and McKeachie tossed in six points for the old timers' total.

In a preliminary game, First United edged the Vic High juniors, 42-39.

Old Timers—Andrews 23, Chapman 10, Martin, Peden 14, Goldsmith, Jackson 8, McKeachie 6. Total—61.

Vic High Totems—English 17, Kowalyk 18, Wilson 2, Skillings 11, Vickery 2, Tomlinson 7, Chiko 18, Devlin 2. Total 79.

Segula Brings Record Price

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Segula, Nashua's dam, was sold Friday for $126,000—a North American record for a broodmare — to Humphrey Finney, acting as agent for an undisclosed buyer.

Nashua, thoroughbred racing's horse of the year in the United States, was sold for a record $1,251,200 last month.

Both were owned by the Belair Stud of the late William Woodward Jr.

Previous high for a broodmare was $105,500 paid here a year ago for Nasaka by the Aga Khan.

Segula, 16-year-old dark bay mare, is in foal to Nasrullah.

SAANICHTON BASKETBALL

Saanich Suburban Basketball League has scheduled two games for tonight at the Saanichton Agricultural hall.

Saanichton bantam boys open the twin bill at 7.30 with a game against Cordova Bay, to be followed by an exhibition contest between Saanichton junior girls and the Victoria Eaglettes' juvenile squad.

Favored Lausse Held To Draw by Savage

NEW YORK (AP) — Eduardo Lausse of Argentina, dropped for an automatic eight-count in the seventh round, closed with a rush to gain a draw with Milo Savage, the 5-to-1 underdog from Salt Lake City, Friday night in a 10-round battle at Madison Square Garden.

Lausse weighed 159¾, Savage 159.

The handsome Argentine, shooting for his 32nd straight victory since 1952, was floored by a long "sneak" right by Savage midway in the seventh. Although he got up almost immediately he had to take the automatic eight count from referee Barney Felix under New York rules.

Lausse slammed Savage from corner to corner as the Salt Lake veteran went into his familiar shell defence in the final round. Still, Savage was strong enough to throw two heavy punches in the closing seconds.

The official vote was split all the way. Referee Barney Felix called it 5-4-1 for Savage and judge Frank Forbes scored it 6-3-1 for Lausse. Judge Artie Aidala voted 5-5 with six points for each.

Bowling Roundup . . . . . . By Jim Taylor

Mary Chayko, Ron Cush Top Fivepin Tourney

High scores were few and far between in tenpin action this week, as many of the senior leagues suspended action for the holidays.

Big news of the weeks was made by a pair of fivepin bowlers, Mary Chayko and Ron Cush, who took top prize money in Capital City Bowladrome's doubles tournament. The two combined for a five-game series total of 2599 to beat out Roy Jago and Gerry Lawrence, who placed second with a mark of 2493.

Mary wound up with 1071 for the series, while Cush had himself a day that most bowlers dream about, finishing with a whopping 1385, including single games of 339, 335 and 318. The total won the two trundlers $21.00. Jago and Lawrence picked up $13.50. Third place in the tourney went to Harry Welch and Alex Greenfield who posted 2440.

Eric Chayko (309), H. Butler (302), and Harry Cool (321) scored noteable singles in the tournament.

In the regular league play at Capital City, high triples were registered by Stan Bell, (310), Don Glass, (724), Art Barry (723) and A. Attfield, (806). Mary Kelly had a 308 single.

At Esquimalt Bowladrome, the doubles and singles tournament is still in progress, and those wishing to enter have until Monday night at 9 to do so. Sixteen-year-old Gary Roskamp leads the singles with a sparkling 903 triple, which includes a 385 single effort. Tony Bishop and Alex Spears with a 1583 total are on top in doubles competition.

Esquimalt's novel bowling bonspiel will start Saturday, Jan. 21, with a $5.00 per team entry fee. The event will be run off like a curling bonspiel, with one loss knocking a team into a lower event.

Frank Morgan, 765 (325), Harry Booth, 720, Bill Smith, 714 (307) and Bill Curley, 712 were high bowlers at Esquimalt in league play.

High tenpin score of the week was posted by Bob Bystedt at Strathcona Bowling Alleys, who rolled to a 608 (225) total, but all other scores of interest were made in the Gibson's Bowladrome commercial league. J. Bacon 594 (234), P. Graham, 589 (213), J. Galio, 578 (210), Coh McBeth, 568 (206), C. Morgan, 558 (216), J. Anderson, 553 (211) and A. Masters and Gordie Bamford with 551 paced the Gibson's bowlers.

FAN FARE — Walt Ditzen

Zonal Competition Suggested For Early Rounds of FA Cup

By RICHARD L. THOMAS
Daily Colonist London Correspondent

The New Year is the time when all sports writers and half the fans start telling you with something of the infallibility of all good prophets just which team will be at Wembley on May 5 for the Cup Final. Only two teams can get there but so far at least a dozen have been named and quite reasonably I suggest that a pin amongst the results in the Colonist 7,000 miles away is just as likely to yield the winner as any prediction of mine at this end.

There is not any degree of unanimity amongst the experts though it looks as though the wizards in this line of business think that the cup will go north again—which is just another guess for some club north of Birmingham.

Another significant thing, of course, is that all the experts give themselves a comfortable way out of every prediction. Some team will do all right provided the ground is not muddy, another team is no good on a frozen pitch, others are dependent on the good health of one or two players, and so it goes on. So may I start a new year by suggesting that all the Anglo soccer fans be consoled by the thought that the Cup is still very open, that the bookies will give you not less than 25 to one against any choice and a couple of thousand to one in the case of two or three. But it seems that none of those remaining in the cup have a better chance than 25 to one and you have only got to look where bookmakers live to realize that they seem to do better in acquiring this world's goods than the sports columnists.

DEMOCRATIC CONTEST

The predictions, hopes and aspirations do not, however, prevent the flow of speculation on how to have a bigger and better FA Cup as part of the general plan to bring more customers through the gates. At the moment the Cup is just about the most democratic thing in Britain. Any football team can go in for it, amateur or professional, and how far they go depends on the luck of the draw.

Some people have the idea that it would be much more exciting if the country was divided into zones with area competitions. After all Newcastle does not get wildly excited if it has to play some club no one has ever heard of before. On the other hand it may be a very important club in its own backyard. If the country was zoned, local interest would be stimulated and maintained for the whole period of the competition. Then the zonal winners would start playing off in the final rounds.

GREATER INTEREST

This idea is also suggested for league games. Zonal leagues would help to maintain local interest. If Britain was divided into four and league games concentrated within those four divisions there would be an enormous saving of cost to the clubs in travelling expenses and greater local interest.

Travelling possibly has something to do with the declining quality of British football. A long coach drive, sleeping in a strange bed and the probability of a restless night do not provide the best background to first class football. When this is repeated two or three times a week, as sometimes happens at the height of the season, the consequences are even more serious. Anyone doubting this need only study the number of away wins compared with home wins. The difference is not all due to the unfamiliar ground.

There is also the question of amateurs and professionals. At present both are equal in the F.A. Cup even though the amateurs rarely get very far. If the Cup was made a professional contest only, quite a lot of dead wood would be cut out but the possibility of some unknown David getting to Wembley would disappear. The fact that it has never happened does not deter the sentimentalists who say it would be a pity if it just could not happen.

POOLS COULD HELP

Another suggestion looming into prominence again these days is that the pools' promoters should make some contributions to the clubs' finances. So far the Football Association have regarded pools as a canker on the ear of the game. They have repulsed the pools' promoters, who every week collect fortunes running into millions of pounds from "investors", but now their attitude may be softening. A one-per-cent contribution by the gentlemen who use the F.A. fixture list for their business could make the difference between solvency and bankruptcy for some clubs. It would also mean that tens of thousands of people, whose only interest in football is the hope of winning a pool would at least make some contribution to the games whose fixture list provides their recreation. At the moment something like $300,000 is being spent annually on football polls.

Possibly a third of this amount gets back to the customer in the form of winnings—the rest is divided between the protomers, the tax man and the post office. At the moment no one connected with football gets anything out of it unless a grateful customer sends a donation to his favorite club which is not very often.

Faces Royals

KEN HIBBERT
Former centre forward who has been shifted to a fullback position, Ken Hibbert will be in action for Victoria Strathconas in Pacific Coast Soccer League match at Royal Athletic park this afternoon. Strathconas will be seeking second consecutive league victory in match starting at 2.

TITLE BOUT SCHEDULED

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—George Barnes, the Australian who holds the British Empire welterweight championship will defend his title against Benny Niuwenhuizen of South Africa at Johannesburg late in March.

GAVILAN TO LONDON

LONDON (UP)—Promoter Jack Solomons announced Friday that Kid Gavilan, former world welterweight champion, will meet Britain's Peter Waterman in a 10-round bout at London's Harringay arena Feb. 7.

Ring War Takes New Turn As Norris Supports Helfand

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The boxing "war" broke out on two fronts Friday as promoter Jim Norris of the powerful International Boxing Club announced he would continue to promote fights in New York despite a possible managers' boycott and Governor Theodore McKeldin of Maryland vetoed the shift of Monday night television fights from here to Baltimore.

Norris, who promotes the Wednesday and Friday night radio and television fights for a coast-to-coast audience, said he had met "at length" Friday with Julius Helfand, chairman of the state athletic commission, and "assured him he would continue to present boxing shows in New York."

"Further," he said, "I emphasized that the IBC will co-operate with him 100 per cent and will continue to comply with the laws of this state and the regulations of the commission."

SIGNS MIDDLEWEIGHTS

Then Norris announced he has signed middleweight Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, and Gile Turner of Philadelphia for a bout in Syracuse, N.Y., on Jan. 20. That is four days after the Deadline set for members of the Boxing Guild of New York to sever their connections with the guild or face loss of their licences.

Merv Jenson, manager of Fullmer, is not a member of any guild. Katz is a member of the Keystone (Pa.) State Managers' Guild, which is affiliated with the International Boxing Guild, parent organization of the many guilds across the United States.

After McKeldin's aides met in Baltimore Friday with the three members of the commission, the commission revoked its action in granting permission for the shift of the Monday night TV fights from New York to Baltimore starting Jan. 23.

The London Sporting Club, headed by Tex Sullivan and Willie Gilzenberg, received an okay from the Maryland commission to copromote in Baltimore with Benny Trotta and Angelo Munafo of Baltimore.

Sullivan and Gilzenberg had decided to shift from the ancient St. Nicholas Arena in New York to Baltimore because, they said, they couldn't get managers to sign for fights in New York after the Jan. 16 deadline.

The New York guild Thursday night met and voted unanimously not to dissolve its membership as ordered by Helfand. The guild said it had the full support of the 16 other guild affiliates.

"We ... have nothing ... ," Charlie Johnston, president of the International Boxing Guild, said after that meeting.

Like the young of all hares, baby jack rabbits—prairie hares—are born fully furred and with eyes open.

Russian Skier Seriously Hurt

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (UP)—Russian Olympic skier Olga Lysenko was impaled Friday on a guide pole while speeding down the slalom course in the women's ski tryout for the Olympics.

The ends of the pole, protruding from either side of her right thigh, had to be sawed off before she could be rushed to a hospital.

The 27-year-old skier, a hostess in a Sverdlowvsk workers art club, took a spill as she sped through one of the gates outlining the course. She fell against a guide pole which broke and jabbed through her thigh, spear-like.

Mighty Ursus Loses Verdict

Leo Numa was carried from the ring after his main-event bout with the Mighty Ursus in Thursday night's professional wrestling card at Victoria Ballroom, but was awarded the match when Ursus was disqualified for rough tactics.

In the other half of the double main event, Millie Stafford won the deciding fall of a best-of-three fall bout with Edith Wade. Tiger Joe Tomasceo and Gerry Main fought to a draw in the one-fall opener.

Match Postponed

VANCOUVER (BUP)—The Pacific Coast Soccer League's attempt to reach the halfway point of the first-half schedule by Easter has been halted by the pitch at Callister park.

The pitch failed to recover fully from Monday's play and forced the postponement of today's clash between St. Andrews and Hales.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices generally displayed a firmer tone in moderately active trade on the Winnipeg grain exchange. Flax scored sharp advances.

Export and shipper buying appeared in flax, where export business included parcel lots sales to the United Kingdom and Japan.

Western Oils At Highest In Three Years

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market moved ahead again Friday rounding out its first week of 1956 with a score of three advances and one decline. Base metals touched two new index highs and western oils closed at a three-year peak. Selected uraniums were in demand. There was little to feature the industrial advance except the strong support for utilities.

Financial institutions, textiles, amusements, motors, constructions and agricultures were firmer, textiles, amusements, motors, constructions and agricultures were firmer. Papers and refining oils opened on a higher note but turned dull. Steels were mixed.

Biggest change was a $2.25 drop to 97¾ by Algoma Steel.

Southam Co. gained $1.50 and Imperial Bank $1, but other advances were limited to fractions.

International Nickel and Campbell Chibougamau were among the fractional-winners in the higher-priced mines.

Gunnar led a uranium advance, gaining ⅝.

Calgary and Edmonton led the better western oils, up 75 cents. Consolidated West Pete headed the losers, off 45 at $7.15. Central Explorations, General Pete, Peace River and Prairie Oil and Gas were off 30-35 cents.

Utilities in Demand

MONTREAL (CP)—A firm tone ruled the stock market at the close of a moderately active session of trading Friday. A few classifications displayed a number of fractional losses, however. Penny mining issues continued to trade actively, moving narrowly in both directions.

Utilities were strong, led by Power Corporation, up 1¼ points. International Nickel and Consolidated Smelters were each up a half in a steady to firmer base metal group.

Banks gained strength. The pulp and paper section and refining oils were mixed.

Quebec Smelting led trading volume in the mines, firming 3 cents.

Steel Price Raised

TORONTO (BUP)—Dominion foundries and steel has boosted the price of steel plate and hot rolled sheet steel by $5 and $10 a ton.

The plate was up $10 to $107 a ton, while the rolled sheet was up $5 to $95.

John G. Sheppard, secretary and comptroller, said the increases were made because of increased costs of materials, mainly scrap metal.

New Paper Plant on Fraser

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Sidney Roofing and Paper Company is to build its new $5,000,000 paper mill on the north arm of the Fraser river in Burnaby, some two miles downstream from New Westminster.

J. A. Craig, general manager of the important Victoria company, tells me that the purchase of 75 acres from the CNR is being concluded, and work is to start almost immediately.

The new paper machine to be installed will be larger than any of the three in the plant at Victoria and it will be used to manufacure paper board for packaging.

Mr. Craig says that the Mainland was selected as the site instead of Victoria because it was closer to their main market.

At present the Victoria site costs Sidney Roofing and Paper Company about $600,000 a year in freight charges between Victoria and the Mainland, said Mr. Craig.

The loss to Victoria of this important expansion of the Sidney Roofing and Paper Company has been expected for sometime, but meantime at least no decision has yet been made to move the whole operation to the new site in Burnaby.

Sidney Roofing and Paper formerly operated in Sidney and was owned by Robert Mayhew. It later moved to the Inner Harbor of Victoria where it is built on crown granted land in the Songhees Indian reserve.

It was sold eight years ago to Garfield Weston, who also bought out the Western Match Company, owned by Mr. Mayhew. Shortly after the purchase, the Western Match factory in Victoria was closed down.

BOOST FOR B.C. MINES

The price for zinc was raised by half a cent a pound to 13½ cents by the American Metal Company yesterday.

The increase follows a one cent a pound advance in the price of lead within the past ten days.

The double jump is important to British Columbia mines for lead and zinc between them are responsible for about 60 per cent of the value of all mineral production in the province.

In 1955 the estimated value of zinc produced in B.C. was $52,319,000, while lead was $44,-[illegible] amounted to $80,000,000. Zinc took first place over lead with an increase of 25 per cent over 1954. In that year lead had been the largest mineral wealth producer.

London Steels Gain

LONDON (Reuters) — The stock markets were irregular with some profit-taking and also a selective demand. Operators proceeded with caution.

British funds drifted lower in the absence of support while foreign bonds lacked any decided trend. In rails, Canadian Pacific advanced. International Nickel was sharply higher on reports of the record nickel output for 1955. The other trans-Atlantic issues were uncertain.

Steels improved after a dull start in an irregular industrial section.

Hawker Siddeley eased in aircrafts after Thursday's sharp rise.

How are the Names of Automatic Telephone Exchanges Selected?

Perhaps you've wondered how the names of automatic telephone exchanges are chosen. Why names such as Lakeview and Mutual? Why not names of local or historical significance? The fact is, in order to provide a uniform, continent-wide basis for present and future telephone planning, it is no longer practical to select names having local or geographical significance.

Nowadays, new exchange names are almost always selected from a carefully prepared list used by the major telephone companies throughout Canada and the United States. Besides adopting new exchange names, all communities participating in this plan must follow a new method of numbering. All telephone numbers must eventually consist of two letters and five figures—for example: LAkeview 2-1234.

These new names and numbers are a further step toward the objective of telephone engineers in both countries—a plan that foresees any telephone user dialing practically any telephone number in Canada or the United States without the services of an operator.

Two Vessels To Be Built

The two new ships of Columbia Coast Mission, the Anglican organization which serves 10,000 persons in 225 B.C. coastal communities, may be launched together in June, Rev. Alan Greene announced in Vancouver yesterday.

Star Shipyards (Mercer's) of New Westminster has begun construction of the $75,000 Columbia, and tenders for the new $35,000 Rendezvous will probably be called in two weeks.

Campaign to meet the cost passed the goal of $100,000 late last month, Mr. Greene said.

Message from the Minister — Probes Materialism

In God's Service Use Man's Goods

REV. A. M. ANGUS
Minister, Brentwood United Church

In most of our cities we ... a week ... of fair week ... ing which thousands of people ... the event. The value of these fairs in building for the future cannot be over-estimated.

We ought never to lose sight of the fact that we are a part of a great ongoing process. Mankind has not yet arrived at any phase of its development, and past achievement should encourage man to strive for better things tomorrow.

However, every thoughtful person will agree that means must be provided for men in this world of progress to meet the problems of ... suffering and sin. There seems to be too little to help the man of tomorrow toward a deeper faith in God, a spirit of ... and a ... character to resist ...

Without these moral and spiritual essentials, a better world will never come. Any progress that is made on material growth alone is only temporary.

Our ... fairs are for the purpose of creating a desire for something better. When the desire has been created ... When mankind wants a better ... righteousness ... come.

Jesus said: "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled." He made it very plain that any purpose based on the material rather than the personal element is built on sand.

If we are to have a better world in 1956, we must more fully practice the teaching of the second commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Our neighbor may live many miles miles away, but he manufac...

The real hypocrites of today are those who see no relation between religion and industry, between religion and education and between religion and economics.

Jesus said: "Blessed are ye for ye visited the sick, clothed the naked, comforted them ... We believe that ... education to ... the ... the results. Let us keep in ... a ... of society ... the food that has kept you and ... together, it is the only hope for the future. Then let us as we journey through ... keep our eyes on the promised land. Judgment was reserved until Jan. 1[illegible] in the city police court trial of Edward V. Dear, 1010 Pembroke, charged with criminally negligent driving at 1.30 a.m. Dec. [illegible].

Navy shore patrol member William Brown [illegible] and he followed Dear's car on Gorge from Harriet, at speeds from 35 to 45 miles an hour. He said the car was swerving along the street.

He radioed city police and they stopped the car at Douglas and Bay.

Dear and his wife Mildred said the car swerved once to eliminate a shimmy in a front wheel. Dear said he told police of the shimmy but the vehicle was not examined.

Defence counsel was James Proudfoot.

Hugh S. Cox, 4051 Grange road, was acquitted in Saanich court on a charge of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol Dec. 22.

He was charged following a collision on Admirals, north of Murray drive. Cox said that on the afternoon he used four caps of commercial ether on a rag in 10 minutes to help start a ship's engine. He said the fumes left him with a headache.

Cox said he had one drink at home about 7 p.m. and three other drinks of rye while visiting friends later. He had been in bed four hours at 2[illegible].

Magistrate Henry Hall said a car was parked partly straddling the road and that Cox may have well been confused by an approaching car in distinguishing [illegible] across the road. It would be difficult to judge whether Cox was careless.

In dismissal he added that evidence of impairment was not strong.

Defence counsel was James Proudfoot.

In Colwood RCMP court William L. Howard, Haldon road, Central Saanich, was fined $10 and $3 costs for possessing a shotgun not permanently plugged.

Game Act regulations require a shotgun to be plugged so that it can hold only three shells. Howard was charged following a spot check in Sooke area by Game Warden Bob Sinclair.

Argentine Education Purged of Two Perons

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—"I see Eva.

"She is pretty.

"She loves children.

"She gives them candy."

That was what the first-grade pupil memorized on page 29 of his reader.

" . . . The president of this great country . . . is called the foremost Argentine worker . . . His name . . . Juan Domingo Peron. His slogan . . . Happiness for the people."

The second-grader memorized that on page 11 of his textbook.

By the third grade the Argentine child was poring over more complex passages: "Peron . . . raised our standard of living, wiping our hunger from all Argentine homes."

This was "education" under Juan Peron's dictatorship.

OFF PEDESTALS

Argentine education is being de-Peronized. It is a task that anti-Peronista parents watch with special pleasure.

Busts of Eva and Juan Peron have come down from pedestals in hallways and classrooms. Pictures of the two have vanished from school walls. Books containing propaganda have been replaced by dusted-off volumes used before Peron rose to power.

Peronista teachers are being replaced. Private academies, brought under government control, got back their autonomy.

Similar changes are taking place with regard to the Roman Catholic Church to which 90 per cent of Argentina's citizens belong. Late in 1954 Peron accused church leaders of trying to undermine his regime. Today the church again is unmolested. Catholics turn out en masse for public ceremonies. Black-robed priests stroll down public streets without apprehension.

Changes also are occurring within Argentine catholicism which could affect greatly the nation's future.

Catholics were shocked into militant unity during Peron's anti-church campaign. Since then a subtle split has widened between those who think the church should reign supreme and more moderate Catholics. Critics say the [illegible] dictatorship in Argentina.

MODERATE LEAD

At present, the moderates appear ahead in this quiet struggle. They came out on top when provisional president Eduardo Lonardi was ousted in a coup Nov. 1[illegible]. Lonardi was popular with Catholic nationalists. The men who ejected Lonardi, who had fought under him against Peron, [illegible] totalitarian-minded extremists had seized control of his government.

The new caretaker regime of Maj.-Gen. Pedro Aramburu has proclaimed itself in favor of democracy and against extremists from either left or right. It indicates it prefers the moderate brand of catholicism.

Thus the new government repealed Peron's decree legalizing prostitution [illegible] publicly denied rumors it plans to wipe out Peron's law legalizing divorce. It [illegible] relations between Argentina and the Vatican. It has said nothing about restoring religious education to schools.

Aramburu and his collaborators have shown special friendliness to Msgr. Miguel de Andrea, a bishop reputed to be one of the staunchest democrats in Argentine catholicism. The Christian Democratic party, generally considered a moderate Catholic force, is stepping up its activity.

Sidney Man Fined $25 On Income Tax Charge

SIDNEY—Patrick Brown, of Sidney, was fined $25 and $5.50 costs in police court here yesterday for failing to file an income tax return.

Wayne Kinghorn, Watos crossroad, was fined $25 and $5 costs for driving without [illegible] liability insurance contrary to his driver's licence restriction.

In Colwood court Donald F. [illegible] was fined $10 for speeding and Martin Williams was fined $15 for parking on the travelled portion of the highway.

Mayor Scurrah Turns Down Request To Veto Point Ellice Bridge By-Law

Prompt rejection of a request that he veto the $300,000 Point Ellice bridge money by-law was announced by Mayor Percy Scurrah last night.

Ald. Donald Smith asked earlier in the day for the veto because of indications that Victoria will receive more money from the provincial government and that the city mill rate will rise this year.

"I have no intention of vetoing it, the mayor said. "There will be lots of opportunities to consider any aid that may come."

The mayor said the by-law could be submitted to the people "in a month, but it is almost sure that it will not be done in that time."

PREMIER QUOTED

Ald. Smith pointed to a statement by Premier W. A. C. Bennett indicating that more money is forthcoming from the provincial government "and I presume some of this money will be earmarked for the Point Ellice bridge."

"The proposed increased budget and the anticipated diversion of certain revenues and cancellation of other sources of income will be such a burden on the home-owners that drastic steps must be taken if we are going to hold the line," he said.

Council voted, 7-2 Tuesday in favor of placing a $300,000 money by-law before the public and providing the remainder of the cost of a $500,000, two-lane, deck-type bridge from land sales. Opponents were Aldermen Smith and Robert Macmillan.

REASON FOR RUSH

Ald. Smith in a letter to the mayor said "there seems to be some [illegible] reason for rushing the question to the people.

"The 30-day waiting period (caused by a veto) will certainly cause no hardship on the taxpayers of this city," he said. "At the same time, it will you an opportunity of enquiring personally from the premier to learn just what financial aid is proposed."

The alderman said taxpayers would support a veto "because they realize that an expenditure of such magnitude is something not to be treated lightly, and especially in view of the fact that there is every indication that the taxpayers will be subjected to a fairly substantial increase in the mill rate this year."

Mayor Scurrah said he and council "have no knowledge yet of the mill rate because there are no estimates yet."

He added he will deal formally with the request at the next council meeting Thursday.

City Team For Talks

Mayor Percy Scurrah announce dyesterday that he and Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, will represent Victoria at a special meeting of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities at Nanaimo Jan. 25 to consider the proposed new Municipal Act.

Greetings—Taxes Soon Due

The income tax department sent usually-belated New Year's greetings to Victoria taxpayers yesterday. And, as in years past, John Q. is just as reluctant to pick up the 1956 tax forms to see how much of his earnings will be lifted from the bankroll.

To ease the annual crimp somewhat, the government is offering a new model tax form this year which they say is designed to eliminate some of the [illegible] before the April 30 deadline.

The new forms, described by local tax officials as "radical but simplified"—are actually three in number, one as a guide, another to practice on, and the third which is sent in along with slight remuneration to the government.

FINE TYPE

Instructions, in the past jammed in fine type on the forms, will this year be listed on a separate sheet.

Despite all this "simplification," the new forms will include more questions. Officials hope the extra questions will provide a more complete account of the taxpayers' liabilities.

"I hope the result of the department's efforts will be reciprocated in readable returns," he said.

The 1956 tax forms are now available at the income tax offices, 805 Government street, or at public wickets in any post office.

Travel 'Force' Denied

NANAIMO—Nanaimo's Chamber of Commerce takes exception to Mayor Percy Scurrah's recent statement that 120,000 people in Victoria were being forced to travel via Nanaimo to the mainland.

Manager J. Dudley said Friday his executive does not feel that in promoting travel via Nanaimo that they are 'forcing' anyone but acting only in the best interests of the Island as a whole.

"Nanaimo happens to be a natural geographic focal point from which traffic between mainland and the Island can move with the greatest and easiest dispatch," he pointed out.

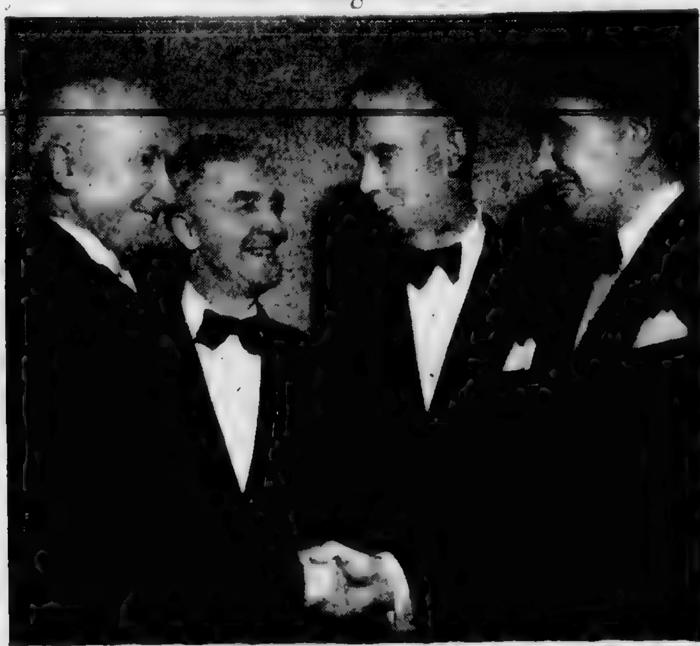

By stimulating an increase in traffic through the Hub City, he said his executive feels that they are serving the interests of every Island resident whether they live in Victoria or Campbell River.

Wet Outlook For Weekend

Weather will remain cloudy with intermittent showers around Victoria during the weekend.

Shoreline sections of highways which were undermined or flooded by wind-whipped waves were reported to be in passable condition.

Annual Ball Held

Victoria Kiwanians Install New Officers

Led by kilted piper James MacMolan more than 240 Greater Victoria Kiwanians and their wives entered the Crystal ballroom of the Empress hotel last night for the annual installation banquet for the new officers of three district clubs.

Installation officer for the dress affair was Austin Curtis, a past district lieutenant governor, who introduced the new presidents of the Victoria, Victoria North and Oak Bay groups.

HILL HONORED

New officers installed were:

Victoria: Sam G. Hill, president; Harvey Bailes and Sam Swetnam, vice-presidents; Vic Shoemaker, secretary-treasurer; Reg Hird, Marcus F. Smith and Sam Keetch, directors.

Victoria North: Ed Bowden Green, president; Hugh Ferguson and Bill Jorgenson, vice-presidents; Percy Wright, secretary; Art MacDonald, treasurer; Bob MacMinnan, John Sterling, Jack McEarty, Harold MacGregor, Jack Irving, Wally Stipe and Earl Bertram, directors.

Oak Bay: Findlay McKinnon, president; Ken Brown and E. D. Ferguson, vice-presidents; Len Parsin, secretary; Jack Wallace, treasurer; Jim Fitzlason, George Farmer, Alf Newton, Jack Berger, Hugh Breton, Jack McKeown and Bert Young, directors.

PAST CHIEFS

Kiwanis head table dignitaries included past lieutenant governor Charles Mann and lieutenant governor-elect George Addison of Nanaimo.

Master of ceremonies of the affair was Victoria past president Harold Johns.

Following the banquet a dance was held in the ballroom.

Gorge Hospital Wants Public At Open House

Residents of Victoria have been invited to take a first hand glimpse of the work being accomplished at the year-old Gorge Road hospital.

An "open house" at the hospital will be held from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, sponsored by the women's auxiliary.

The 104 beds are all occupied and there is a waiting list of patients.

Administrators of the hospital feel the public does not know just what is being attempted and has been accomplished.

In addition to general hospital care, physiotherapy and occupational therapy departments have been set up in order that an attempt may be made to re-establish some of the patients so they can return to their homes.

It is hoped that Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross will attend the function.

'Dead Letter' Mail

A stack of about 30,000 undeliverable items will be given one last check by post office workers this week before they are shipped to the dead letter office for the western provinces in Vancouver.

Although most of the articles on hand are casually addressed Christmas cards there are also a number of parcels and smaller gift-wrapped items that were once enclosed in larger packages.

Post office officials said yesterday that they have about four dozen of these "stocking gifts" which are marked only with such notations as "to Aunt Felice with love from Susan and Tommy."

Persons who found their delivered packages damaged and believed some mailed items may be missing are asked to call in at the post office and look through the articles on hand.

Articles in unclaimed undeliverable parcels and enclosures other than money in envelope mail will be held in the dead letter office for one year and then will be sold at a public auction.

Parks Discussed

Non-Secret Committee May Stiffen Heat Laws

Minimum heating requirements for city suites may be strengthened and the provincial government will be asked to decide if it wishes to take control of Thetis Lake and Goldstream parks.

These two matters were discussed by the city parks committee yesterday at the first city council committee meeting opened to the press in nearly two years.

NO SECRETS

"We have no secrets," said Ald. Robert Macmillan, new parks chairman who has fought the "secrecy" by-law since its introduction by former mayor Claude Harrison in 1954.

Aldermen Donald Smith and Mrs. Lily Wilson also agreed to the open meeting. Mayor Percy Scurrah has already opposed "certain sections" of the by-law.

Because "many people had to move from apartments in Victoria due to lack of heat in the cold wave," Ald. Smith won support for his request that a report be made on the by-law covering minimum heat requirements for suites.

"STRONG TEETH"

Information will be obtained from Vancouver whose by-law has "quite strong teeth," the alderman said.

Committee voted to recommend to council that Ald. Smith head a group which will ask the provincial government to decide whether it wishes to take over the parks. The government agreed to do so in 1951 but the matter was later dropped.

Council last year voted for selective logging in Thetis Lake park to finance park improvements, but the issue was tabled after former mayor Claude Harrison vetoed the decision.

'Marine Junk Store'

Kipling Portrait Vastly Changed

Admiral H. F. Pullen, Flag Officer Pacific Coast, told the Kipling Society last night about the "marine junk store" which used to be Esquimalt.

"This is what Kipling said when he visited Esquimalt in 1907," the admiral told the society at its annual dinner.

He quoted: "We went to look at a marine junk store which had once been Esquimalt, a station of the British navy.

WINDING ROADS

"It was reached through winding roads, lovelier than English lanes, along waterways and pathways any one of which would have made the fortune of a town."

Then said the admiral: "What would Kipling think now—the marine junk store has been replaced by a harbor full of ships and an efficient dockyard."

"As for Esquimalt road it is certainly not beautiful but does serve a useful purpose."

Admiral Pullen said that the descriptions which Kipling gave while in the Channel fleet in 1897-98 were "well worth reading even in this day and age."

"The ships have changed, but the sea, the men and the task are still the same," he went on.

"As a sailor I have always admired Kipling's ability to write in some detail of matters concerning ships and the sea," he said.

He could not have written what he did without a good knowledge of ship building and the way a ship behaves at sea.

Admiral Pullen suggested it was a "besetting sin" that Canadians were too apt to forget, "to forget our history and background, all the toil and effort that has made this wonderful country of ours, and speaking as a sailor, the vital part the sea, ships and seamen have played and are playing in making Canada a nation, within the Commonwealth."

Problem Never Ends

Long-Suffering Theatre Men Get Tough to Curb Vandalism

By BRUCE LOWTHER

A tough policy is reducing vandalism in Victoria theatres, but managers agreed yesterday that the problem will never be ended because "it's so very, very difficult to find out who they are."

Most are thought to be teen-aged boys who generally work in the afternoon and at midnight shows, costing Victoria's eight theatres something more than $2,500 a year.

Insurance cannot be purchased to pay for the damage.

Worst damage is done to seats, often slashed from corner to corner, Odeon manager Elliott Brown said. "What irks me most is that they pull out the foam rubber and throw it in little bits on the floor."

NAMES LISTED

Seat arms are broken and aisle lights stolen. Damage and theft also occurs in washrooms. Managers have exchanged lists of known wrong-doers, but plans of combat vary.

Capitol manager Jock Robertson said: "I talk to them nicely, tell them they're rather foolish because they're missing the show, and we have very little trouble."

Although a 12-year-old boy was recently caught while shooting tacks and nails from the balcony to the main floor of the Plaza, manager Jack Armstrong said "I'm really surprised" by the lack of serious trouble.

COME TO TERMS

"Once you get to know the rowdy gangs, you don't let them in," he said. "Then they promise to be good. They come to your terms."

"We just check them the first time and next time they go out and stay out," said Fox manager Bert Nixon. "We haven't had any problems for a long time because of that."

[illegible] then must be accompanied by [illegible].

Cherry Bank Hotel May Change Hands

Negotiations are under way to sell the Cherry Bank hotel, 818 McClure, to an interior businessman, it was learned last night.

Estimated sale price of the hotel, which includes dining and cocktail lounges, is $150,000.

The prospective buyer, who owns businesses in the Okanagan valley, was not further identified.

Sensitive Microphones . . . . . . Pick Up Whispers

MLAs' Asides Wired for Sound

Muttered asides by members of the legislature will have to be ultra soft during the forthcoming session which opens Jan. 17.

A new system of microphones at present being installed in the legislative chamber will pick up the slightest noise from any part of the floor, whether it be the dropping of a pin or a brick.

The old system which had been in use for many years was described by Speaker Thomas Irwin yesterday as "entirely obsolete."

There were 24 cumbersome microphones spread around the chamber—one to every two members—but only one microphone could operate at any given time.

The delay in turning other microphones on and adjusting the volume control to suit the speaker often meant that barbed wit and pearls of wisdom went unappreciated.

The system at present being installed features 20 small microphones suspended on wires eight feet above the floor of the house.

There are four "control banks" of five microphones each but there is no control of individual microphones.

Any bank of five can be cut out by the operator.

"When the house is in committee all 20 microphones will be live," said Mr. Irwin yesterday.

Four speakers will be placed around the edge of the public galleries.

The new system is almost identical to the one used in the House of Commons in England.

BEAUTY & YOU

BY MARIAN MATTHEWS

Have your eyes lost their allure? Have you neglected their health and the skin area about them? Ogle yourself in a mirror to see if the past year has left its mark on them. Let Father Time stand still, if he can't and [illegible] progress some with good care.

Plenty of rest helps the physical and external appearance of the eyes. Of course they need exercise to be [illegible] but this should be part of [illegible] daily reading and your trips outdoors where your eyes [illegible] sort of stretch themselves [illegible] body and view distances. School Pin Presented To Len Acres

The Crystal Gardens was the scene of a festive party last Thursday night when one hundred and fifty Old Boys of St. Michael's school and their friends celebrated their twenty-fourth annual dance.

Len Acres and his orchestra provided the music for the twenty-first consecutive year. To mark the occasion he was presented with a school pin by Mr. J. Barber-Starkey, president of the Old Boys' Association.

Supper arranged and served by the Mothers' Auxiliary—convened by Mrs. N. Sanguinetti—was enjoyed in the lower ballroom.

Many private parties preceded the festivities.

Among those bringing parties were Capt. and Mrs. J. D. Prentice, Capt. and Mrs. N. Sanguinetti, Major and Mrs. Greenhouse, Mr. and Mrs. L. Crookston and Mr. and Mrs. A. Higgs. Mr. K. C. Symons, headmaster emeritus, greeted the guests.

The Afternoon branch of St. Saviour's WA will meet on Monday, Jan. 9 at the home of the president, Mrs. B. Jacklin, 811 Russell street, at 2.30 p.m.

Open House at Gorge Hospital

The general public are invited to tour the Gorge Road Chronic and Convalescent hospital and see the progress made during the first year of operation. On Wednesday, Jan. 11, from 2 to 4.30 p.m., the board of directors and the auxiliary are holding open house and linen shower to celebrate the first anniversary. This 104-bed chronic hospital is the first one in the community and is proving worthwhile for many patients, who through proper treatment, which includes physiotherapy and occupational therapy, are helped to become once again useful members of society. Pictured at the home are Mr. H. O. Austin, Mrs. Bente Joergensen, Miss Lyle M. Penfold, Mr. Jung Nipp, Mrs. E. Walton and Mrs. A. E. McLean. (Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman)

Good Buffet Supper Menu

Buffet suppers are an especially nice way of entertaining during the winter season. Here is a good buffet supper menu which is easy to serve and not taxing on the hostess.

Punch Assorted Canapes
Lobster Bisque
Raw Relishes Hot Rolls
Mincemeat Tarts
Coffee

The main course dish of this menu, Lobster Bisque, is rich and satisfying. Serve it steaming hot from a chafing dish if you have one, or from a big tureen.

LOBSTER BISQUE

One [illegible] can frozen lobster meat, 2 chicken bouillon cubes, 1 cup boiling water, 3 [illegible] of butter, [illegible] oz. can [illegible] soup with [illegible] the [illegible] cup butter, [illegible] cup flour, bouillon and the chicken soup, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon [illegible] [illegible] quart [illegible] cream, [illegible] teaspoon pepper, [illegible] teaspoon [illegible] cayenne, [illegible] cup dry sherry.

Open the can of lobster meat and allow to thaw either overnight at refrigerator temperature or for a few hours at room temperature. Dissolve the chicken bouillon cubes in the boiling water. Clean, Gleaming Floors Fairly Easy To Achieve

BY OLI DAUM

TORONTO (CP)—Gleaming floors are traditionally a hallmark of good housekeeping. No housewife's list of new year's resolutions is complete unless she has resolved to keep her floors sparkling clean.

Clean floors are a source of justifiable pride to the homemaker yet they are comparatively easy to achieve.

The small appliance department of one of Canada's large manufacturers of electrical appliances recommends what they have found through research the fastest, easiest way to preserve and enhance the beauty of hardwood and composition type flooring materials.

SCOUR THOROUGHLY

To clean hardwood floors they recommend wax and dirt be first removed by pouring on the floor a small quantity of floor cleaner, then scouring with steel wool or a stiff scrubbing brush.

When clean the floor should be wiped of excess cleaner and dirt with a soft cloth. Care should be taken to scour with the grain of the wood.

An alternative method is to remove the wax with steel wool prior to applying floor cleaner. This way the floors are rubbed down with steel wool. The wax comes off in powder form and may be picked up from the floor with a vacuum cleaner. Floors are then wiped with floor cleaner to remove remaining dust and allowed to dry.

When the floor is thoroughly dry, several light coatings of paste wax should be applied with a clean cloth. Between each coat the floor should be polished and left to dry. This will give it a [illegible] appearance and [illegible] protective coating.

The high lustre should be renewed periodically by polishing every few days or more often in heavy traffic areas without applying the wax.

MONTHLY WAXINGS

About once a month a fresh coat of wax should be applied with a clean cloth, turning the cloth as it gets dirty. The solvent in the paste wax lifts the dirt that has accumulated on top of the protective wax coating and at the same time applies a thin fresh coating.

Linoleum, congoleum, vinyl asphalt and mastic tile floor coverings should be cleaned with detergents, abrasive powder or a stiff brush.

Stubborn spots or stains may disappear if scrubbed lightly with fine steel wool soaked in a mild soap solution. Some grease or oil spots cannot be removed and care should be taken not to mark the floor covering while attempting to get rid of them.

All composition flooring materials should be waxed with a water wax. Paste or solvent-type liquid waxes contain [illegible] solvents which soften and mar the surface.

Grace Kelly Heads Best Ten List—With Simple Styles

NEW YORK (CP)—Grace Kelly, the first movie actress ever to top the official list of the world's best dressed women, has two rules for her personal wardrobe.

"I wear very simple things because I feel they are best on me," Miss Kelly said. "And when I go shopping I go alone to make up my own mind."

Miss Kelly, whose engagement to Prince Rainier of Monaco was announced Thursday, has a reputation as a girl who knows her own mind about her clothes. She said she was "delighted" to have her taste in clothes complimented so highly. The best-dressed list is compiled annually by the couture group of the New York dress institute.

"I was quite thrilled when they told me," she said. She shared the top spot with Mrs. William Paley.

Flies from Yukon To Attend Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Bolt, who were married recently in Oak Bay United Church, are making their home in Victoria following a honeymoon trip to Vancouver, Seattle and Mount Baker.

Rev. W. W. McPherson officiated at the ceremony in which Eva Wallace Hayman, daughter of Mrs. W. Mason, 2012 Richmond Avenue, exchanged wedding vows with Roderick Arthur Bolt.

Given in marriage by her uncle George Mason, the bride wore a peacock blue princess style dress fashioned with ankle length full skirt, three-quarter length sleeves and bateau neckline. She wore a seed pearl necklace which had belonged to her mother and carried a mauve orchid bouquet.

Maid of honor and only attendant was the bride's sister Miss Shirley Mason, who flew from Aklavik, N.W.T. for the wedding. She chose an apricot toned dress styled similarly to the bride's, and wore avacado accessories. Her bouquet was of [illegible].

Ray Irwin was best man, while Ken Pollock and James Jack acted as ushers.

A reception followed at 907 Richmond Avenue, where George Mason proposed the toast to the bride's future happiness. The four-tier wedding cake which centred the bride's table was topped with bows and flanked by red candles in crystal holders.

For her going away outfit the bride wore a pastel multi-striped fitted suit with navy accessories, a navy feather cloche and orchid from her bridal bouquet. She completed her outfit with a squirrel stole.

Mr. and Mrs. Bolt are living at 907 Richmond Avenue.

Annual Members' Dinner To Be Held January 24

Junior auxiliary to the B.C. Protestant Orphanage held its first meeting of the new year Tuesday, with the newly-elected president Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson in the chair.

A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Ada Barrer, matron of the home, for Christmas gifts given by the auxiliary to the children. Each child received a gift of clothing and the school-age children were also given pre-Christmas spending money.

The president also reported that a set of [illegible] purchased by the [illegible] is in use at the home.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Victoria No. 2 Social Credit Womens' Auxiliary for a cash donation, and to the Thunderbird Chapter of the IODE for books for the childrens' library.

The treasurer, Miss Dianne [illegible], reported that final receipts from the [illegible] Bazaar amounted to $1,060.

The buying committee, Mrs. John Hicks and Mrs. Clare Nelson, will purchase oranges and [illegible] and Kleenex each month. Birthday gifts for February will be taken to the home by Miss Marie [illegible] and Miss [illegible].

The annual dinner, to be held Jan. 24, will be convened by the vice-president, Miss Leslie Field.

TV Talk

By ROY PARRELL

Is my face red? And I have spots before my eyes, too. Seems like Thursday's column about the bright spot in the middle of TV screens raised some eye

Several readers have asked if the bright spot which remained in the centre of their screen after the set was switched off would damage the big tube. A number of technicians asked about it said no. They suggested turning the brightness fully 'off' before shutting the set off, if the spot worried the set owner.

But the mix was hardly dry on Thursday's paper before the calls started coming in. It seems that some TV sets use a reverse procedure in the brightness control should be turned fully 'on' to eliminate the bright spot, when switching the set off.

Most servicemen agreed that the spot was a normal part of TV in many makes of sets however and unlikely to damage the screen.

If it is still confusing, better consult your TV service man for accurate information on any particular set.

DISNEY LOVE STORY If you did not manage to see the first half of Walt Disney's English picture "When Knighthood Was in Flower" on Wednesday's Disneyland you can see it it's afternoon at 5:30 on channel 2. This hour-long feature starring Glynis Johns and Richard Todd is a story of life in England in the Tudor period and of the great love of Mary Tudor. The last half of When Knighthood Was in Flower will be seen next Wednesday on channel 5 and again on Saturday on channel 2.

HORSE RACING The feature race from Santa Anita race track will be televised on channels 11 and 12 at 4 p.m. this afternoon.

EARLY MOVIE Clark Gable stars in channel 12's picture, "Strange Cargo" at 6:45.

I SEARCH FOR ADVENTURE Tonight's adventure film shows Sid Smith and Dale Rickards on the "Trail of the Gold Towns". Smith and Rickards were bitten by the same lure that brought the '49ers streaming to California gold. They rode over the mother lode country on horseback attempting to find some of the precious metal which may have been missed by earlier miners. If you pay off finally came through an old prospector whom Rickards tried to ignore on channel 5 at 7.

VARIETY HOUR Songstress Patti Page is guest on Perry Como's hour of musical fun on channel 4 at 8.

MR. SATURDAY NIGHT Jackie Gleason entertains with comedy skits on both channel 2 and 11 at 8.

BEST MUSICAL If you wanted friends over and they declined to come chances are that they will be watching Lawrence Welks program now the top-rated Saturday night show everywhere. It is on channel 5 at 9.

LATE SHOWS "Duffy of San Quentin" is the channel 12 movie at 10:30. Channel 11 is showing "White Ice" at 11 p.m. Susan Hayward, Robert Preston and Pedro Armendariz are seen in the oil story, "Tulsa," at 1:05 on channel 4. "Valley of the Eagles," a war story, is on channel 5 at 11:30.

to continue trading on a rational basis as in the past.
To continue to avoid the bad practices in common selling today, such as phoney sales and over allowances, give-aways, gimmicks and other schemes which are an insult to the public intelligence.

As we have had ample occasion to discover, it's very easy to [illegible] something [illegible] the play of a hand. Therefore we [illegible] to tell you the name of the excellent book on play from which this hand is taken. The advice the author gives is correct in principle, and the fact that it doesn't happen to work in this particular example is just one of those things that make bridge hands interesting.

A spade opening would have [illegible] for declarer, but East's double was a call for a heart opening; in fact, but for that conventional meaning, East's double [illegible] West opened his singleton ten. As the play is described, North's ace was taken and the king of diamonds was led. East took the ace and knocked out North's remaining [illegible] stopper. South got to his hand with a diamond, but the [illegible] a spade, and the jack forced the ace, but East had three good hearts.

Now, advises the author of the book, suppose West is allowed to hold the ten of hearts [illegible] and whatever he leads helps declarer to bring home the three no-trump contract. And, he says, "If East overtakes the heart [illegible] dummy [illegible] hearts becomes a [illegible]."

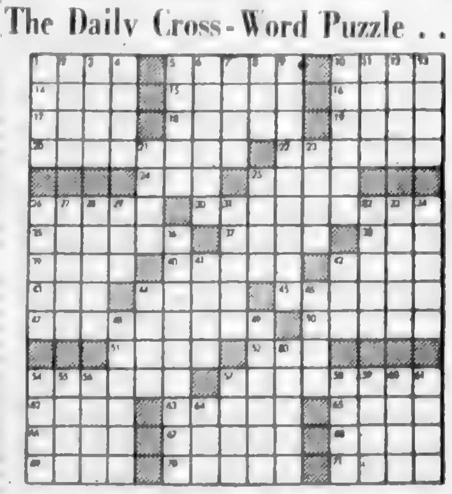

Unfortunately, when this sage observation is [illegible] keeps all his hearts. North cannot actually do so without throwing away the stopper in spades. East [illegible] the play. East overtakes the [illegible] of hearts with the jack and returns the queen, won by North. A low diamond is returned (the king is not the right play, for East can kill one of South's entries by ducking this trick). East ducks and [illegible] at double dummy (as if he could see all the cards) he can break the contract by ignoring the club and immediately leading the [illegible] of spades. With this play, he is bound to make three tricks in clubs and two in each of the other suits.

[illegible] South [illegible] to cash his top [illegible] hopes that the [illegible] will [illegible] dummy to [illegible] whatever North throws will help the defenders develop the [illegible]

Appeal Court May Split

Victoria's crowded courthouse may force the B.C. Court of Appeal to have its civil and criminal divisions sitting in separate cities.

Appeal court sessions open here Tuesday. When the division was announced last September the court said lack of space here prevented the divisions from working in Victoria simultaneously.

The same situation is expected next week.

It is possible that only civil case appeals will be heard in Victoria. Criminal cases may be traversed to Vancouver, as was done last year.

There are 21 appeals listed from criminal court decisions for the sitting opening Tuesday.

LT.-COL. FRED J. ISBISTER

Distinguished City Soldier Dies Aged 52

A distinguished Victoria soldier who rose from the ranks, Lt.-Col. Fred J. Isbister, died recently in Ottawa. He was 52.

Col. Isbister was the son of an old-time Esquimalt family, his parents the late Mr. and Mrs. James Isbister, 625 Canteen road.

He attended Lampson street school and Esquimalt high school before joining the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals in 1924.

During the Second World War he was commissioned overseas.

After the war, he was posted with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps, as assistant director of ordnance services. He retired in April, 1955.

He is survived by his wife, Lucy, a daughter, Beverly and son Donald, all in Ottawa, a sister, Mrs. D. B. (Bessie) Hardie in Vancouver, a brother, George S., in Port Credit, Ont., and uncles and aunts in Victoria. He was buried with military honors in Ottawa, Dec. 23.

Infiltration Attempt

Red Cells in U.S. Press Uncovered

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two senators investigating Communism among newspapermen said yesterday they have uncovered a "significant effort" by the party "to penetrate leading American newspapers."

Senators James O. Eastland and William E. Jenner made the statement as the Senate internal sub-committee ended three days of public hearings by questioning another group of New York newsmen.

Yesterday's witnesses, all either past or present employees of the New York Times, included several who refused to answer some questions about Communism and others who admitted being party members in the past.

Among them were Alden Whitman, now a copyreader on the Times, who testified he once belonged to a Communist cell at the New York Herald Tribune; Robert Shelton, a Times copy editor, who refused to say whether he is a Communist and Nath Aleskovsky, an assistant book review editor for the Times until he was fired recently, testified he is not a Communist now but declined to say whether he had been one in the past.

Seymour Peck, a deskman for the Times Sunday Magazine, said he had been a member of Communist units on the now-defunct New York Star and PM.

Dr. Benjamin Fine, education editor of the Times, testified he was a Communist for about one year in 1935-36, and Jack Shafter, a former Times copy-reader who invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to say if he is a Communist.

Matilda Landsman, a linotype operator on the Times, refused to say whether she is a Communist. She also invoked the Fifth Amendment to a long series of other questions. She heatedly denied having been trained for sabotage.

. . . After 22 Years

NEW YORK (AP)—Daniel Mahoney, a rewrite man for the New York Daily Mirror, was dismissed by the paper Friday because of his refusal to answer certain questions of the Senate internal security sub-committee Thursday.

He was the second New York newspaper man discharged in two days for such a reason. The other was William A. Price, a New York Daily News reporter.

Mahoney, a Mirror employee for 22 years, swore in his testimony that he is not now a Communist but declined to say whether he ever had been.

B.C. Planners Set for Parley

Officials of the Alberta provincial government and CNR will be main speakers at the convention of the B.C. Community Planning Association in Vancouver, Jan. 20 and 21.

H. N. Lash, director of town and rural planning in Alberta, will speak on "Advantages of joint planning for our larger and smaller urban areas."

L. F. Ostrander, CNR industrial commissioner, will discuss "The need for industrial sites."

Delegates from municipal councils and town planning commissions from all parts of the province will discuss such topics as zoning, public transit planning, parking, airports and heliports, highways, housing and sub-divisions.

Victoria delegates are expected to be announced by Mayor Percy Scurrah Monday.

'Mad Mike' Behind Iron Bars After Zero Chase in Wilds

(From CP, BUP)

NIDDRIE, Ont. — Mad Mike Timocenko is behind iron bars today after being arrested with his wife while attempting to escape from Ontario provincial police into the wild bush late last night.

Provincial police closed in on Timocenko, 34, a railway laborer, as he was pulling his wife of seven months along in a sleigh. His wife is expecting a baby in two months.

Timocenko was unarmed and offered no resistance to police as they came in on him from two sides. He will be taken to Kenora by car from Amesdale, six miles east of here.

The gunman had holed up in the small cabin in sub-zero weather with a large supply of ammunition and food. He punched out the windows of the hut and had fired about 100 rounds of ammunition intermittently since Thursday night. Early Friday afternoon the shooting stopped.

The six policemen who were at the scene did not return the fire for fear of hitting the woman. They threw two tear gas bombs into the shack Friday afternoon, with no results. It was believed Timocenko had gas masks with him.

Late Friday night they rushed the cabin after dropping a tear gas bomb. The cabin was empty. They immediately set out to search the surrounding area and found the pair almost midway between Niddrie and Amesdale.

Niddrie is a small hamlet of about a dozen families of railway workers. It is located about 206 miles east of Winnipeg, between Reddit and Sioux Lookout.

Timocenko went berserk Thursday following a dispute with his brother-in-law, Anthony Sydor of Oakburn, Man., who is also his section foreman.

An iron curtain of boxcars had been moved up on the CNR tracks to shield police from the gunman. Passenger trains, including the east-bound Super-Continental, managed to roll through the snow-covered battleground undamaged.

Mrs. Keith Rehhan, a resident of Niddrie, said Timocenko "hasn't been right in his head for the last five weeks." She said he has threatened the people in the hamlet that "he would shoot them up."

Diaper Flag Halts Trains Just in Time

FLINT, Mich (AP)—Mrs. Thelma Haywood used a diaper Friday to flag down two onrushing trains after her car jammed across a double track.

In the car with Mrs. Haywood were her two young daughters and a fellow worker.

Mrs. Haywood said she saw the two trains bearing down from opposite directions. Grabbing an extra diaper, she waved frantically, and both trains stopped in time.

Traitor Shot; Betrayed 500

RENNES, France (Reuters)—A Frenchman who served German military intelligence during the Second World War was shot at dawn here Friday as a traitor.

Claude Besson, 54, was sentenced to death in March, 1955, after he was found guilty of denouncing 500 Maquis (members of a French resistance movement) in north France to the German authorities. Many of them died in concentration camps, and 50 were shot.

French counter-espionage services finally caught up with him in March, 1953.

Russia Envoy Sent to Libya

MOSCOW (UP)—Russia, in a two-fold demonstration of new activity in Africa, sent its first ambassador to Libya Friday and officially confirmed an offer of aid to Liberia.

Thief Loots Mess Funds

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police here Friday were investigating the theft of almost $500 from the petty officers' mess and the wet canteen at HMCS Discovery.

The mess lost $250 and the canteen $221 shortly after a New Year's party at the RCN headquarters. The theft wasn't reported until Thursday, police said.

Moon-Mad Firebug On Loose

NICOLET, Que. (CP) — Belief that a moon-mad firebug is loose in this 5,000-population Quebec town was expressed Friday night by police chief Edouard Beaulac, who said 11 fires since last March show suspicion of criminal action.

The police chief also announced that it has been "definitely established" that a blaze last Saturday —the latest fire—was deliberately set by an unknown arsonist.

The fire destroyed the five-storey mother house of the Grey Nuns religious order in this centre on the south shore of the St. Lawrence river, opposite Trois-Rivieres, Que.

He said all have broken out on weekends and all have occurred in the last phase of the moon.

Chief Beaulac, who is also fire chief, made known his beliefs in the course of a continuing investigation of the blaze.

It caused an estimated $800,000 damage and was the third big fire in this town, about 90 miles northeast of Montreal, in less than a year.

Nine Months in Jail

City Girl Held 'For Own Good'

Detention of a 16-year-old Victoria girl in Oakalla prison farm for women for the last nine months is not illegal and is "for her own good," officials here said yesterday.

Case came to light when Canon W. J. Silverwood, Nelson juvenile court committee chairman and vicar of an Anglican church near Nelson, charged the girl had been held illegally since shortly after her arrest on a drunk charge in Vancouver last April.

The girl, ward of Victoria Family and Children's Service, was sent to girls' industrial school but was declared to be incorrigible and transferred to Oakalla. Government officials here indicated an order-in-council was passed some time ago approving the transfer.

SEEKING HOME

"We will be making a further attempt to place her in a foster home in any city where we can find a satisfactory home," said David Woodsworth, F.C.S. director.

"What was done in Vancouver had our agreement because we realized there was no reasonable alternative," he said.

The girl had previously been convicted on a drug charge and was transferred from Oakalla to the Nelson jail. Later, she went to Vancouver and was arrested.

"The usual fine for a drinking charge is $10 for an adult offender," said Canon Silverwood. "Why then this stiff sentence and unwarranted transfer?"

Mr. Woodsworth said the girl was held in Oakalla to protect her from drug peddlers under whose influence she had fallen.

"In my opinion, jail is preferable to dope addiction and drinking," he said. "Outside of jail, there is no maximum security in the province."

However, efforts of jail officials to rehabilitate the girl were unsuccessful, because "we haven't got the facilities for this kind of girl."

Canon Silverwood said a good foster home awaits the girl, "a home with which I am well acquainted," but Mr. Woodsworth said the search was still going on.

"She has been in our care in various foster homes for several years," he said. "She is an exceptional case and requires exceptional measures."

Coming H-Tests Twice as Potent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States probably will test super-super hydrogen bombs in the Pacific this spring with an explosive force of 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 tons of TNT, a congressional authority said Friday.

Such an H-bomb could almost certainly obliterate any major city and spread deadly radioactive "fall-out" over many thousands of square miles.

A government study committee said only a few days ago that the "time is close at hand" when Russia as well as the United States will have hydrogen bombs of such magnitude.

An official government announcement of the new H-bomb tests is due soon. It is expected to stress precautions that will be taken to make sure no one will be hurt by the almost incredible force of the explosions.

President Eisenhower is understood to have given his final approval for the spring tests to chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The president made it clear in his state of the union message to Congress Thursday that the U.S. would not be persuaded by Soviet propaganda to call off its previously-planned tests.

The congressional authority said the new tests will be held at the Eniwetok-Bikini proving ground in the Marshall islands. The last tests there in the spring of 1954 were of "super H-bombs" comparable in violence to 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons of TNT.

"This year," the source said, "We are thinking in terms of 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 tons."

Ex-B.C. Man Free Of Loyalty Cloud

WASHINGTON (CP) — William Henry Taylor, a former Canadian who is now a U.S. official of the International Monetary Fund, was completely cleared Friday by the United States government of long-standing charges of disloyalty.

Taylor, a native of Revelstoke, B.C., who became a U.S. citizen in 1940, was the first to announce that he had been cleared.

This was confirmed later by Hall Fairbanks, secretary of the international organization's loyalty board, who said that new evidence had caused the board to reverse a June 28 finding that there had been "reasonable doubt" as to Taylor's loyalty.

Taylor, a treasury official during the Truman administration, was caught up in the post-war Red hysteria in the United States and accused of disloyalty on the basis of charges by Elizabeth Bentley, professed Communist spy, that he was a member of a Communist espionage ring during the Second World War.

Now an assistant director of the Middle and Far East divisions of the International Monetary Fund, Taylor was never permitted to face his accuser, though he denied her accusations five times before grand juries and three times before congressional committees.

NEVER MET TAYLOR

Miss Bentley admitted she had never met Taylor. In testimony in 1949 and again in 1950, she said only that a "William Taylor" of the treasury department was a member of a spy ring.

Setback For Eden

Middle East Turmoil Stirs West to Action

LONDON (CP)—Russia has rejected a tentative British suggestion for joint consultation on Middle East problems, it was learned Friday.

It was understood Britain proposed informal exploratory talks between Russia on the one hand and this country and the United States on the other. The purpose would have been to discuss ways of easing tension, particularly between Israel and the Arab states.

The British overture was said to have received a cool reply.

HIGH ON AGENDA

As a result, Prime Minister Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd will put Middle East problems high on their agenda for discussion with President Eisenhower in Washington. Methods of coping with the new Russian strategy, which involves the supply of arms to Egypt and other Middle Eastern countries, now are being worked out here.

MILITARY STALEMATE

The visiting British ministers may also press for a reconsideration of Western policy on two main fronts:

Cold war—the formulation of a new approach based on recognition of the fact that the East-West conflict has reached a position of military stalemate. Now more must be done in the political and economic sphere, perhaps through new forms of financial aid.

Asia—A fresh study of the problem of Communist China, including the question of recognition, trading embargoes, Formosa and the off-shore islands.

OTTAWA VISIT

The government naturally attaches great importance to the North American talks. The fact that Eden decided to travel by ship instead of plane suggests that he wanted ample time for a full preliminary review with Lloyd.

The ministers will spend two or three days in Ottawa early in February. This is not regarded merely as a courtesy call tacked on to the White House visit. Eden has made plain his respect for Canadian views, particularly on Asia.

Red Areas Out of Bounds To Army Men with Secrets

WASHINGTON (UP) — The U.S. army has forbidden officers and enlisted men with certain secret information to travel in Soviet bloc countries and other sensitive areas, it was disclosed yesterday.

The new regulations restrict travel of officers and enlisted men who have knowledge of current value about special intelligence information and/or activities.

The forbidden areas are:

Russia and Soviet-bloc countries, Yugoslavia, Finland, Berlin, Macao, Quemoy, Matsu, Laos, Cambodia, and South Viet Nam, except for the Saigon urban area.

Cinderella Grace Takes Her Shy Prince to a Ball

NEW YORK (UP)—Grace Kelly, as regal as a princess, and Prince Rainier III of Monaco, as nervous-looking as a schoolboy, made their first public appearance Friday night at a fabulous high society ball appropriately entitled "A Night in Monte Carlo."

The couple entered the royal box overlooking the grand ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria while the orchestra played the Monaco national anthem.

Miss Kelly glanced adoringly at Prince Rainier several times, while he looked nervously around the room.

Among the 1,500 persons present were the cream of New York society, more than a dozen royal bluebloods, movie star Gary Cooper and his wife, and Oleg Cassini—a former flame of Miss Kelly.

After making their initial appearance in the royal box, the engaged couple had dinner and drank toasts to one another in champagne. Security guards kept red velvet curtains pulled carefully behind the royal box.

Behind the scenes at the gala ball, waiters and ball officials fended off telephone callers and party crashers who wanted to see the couple.

The prince received two long distance telephone calls, one from Sydney, Australia, and another from West Point, N.Y. But he refused to leave his fiancee to answer either call.

The entertainment, scheduled to begin at 10.30 p.m., with a fashion show, was delayed 45 minutes while the prince and his bride-to-be finished their dinner.

The orchestra repeatedly played waltzes, hoping to lure the young couple onto the floor to dance. But Rainier and his princess-to-be remained in their box until the entertainment ended.

Others in the royal box were Grace's parents, John, a bricklayer-turned-millionaire, and Mrs. Kelly; Father Francis Tucker, the prince's chaplain; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phipps, a young society couple; Marcel Palmaro, Monaco consul, and his wife; Mrs. Lytle Hull, and Mr. and Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke.

Nine Months in Jail

City Girl Held 'For Own Good'

Detention of a 16-year-old Victoria girl in Oakalla prison farm for women for the last nine months is not illegal and is "for her own good," officials here said yesterday.

Case came to light when Canon W. J. Silverwood, Nelson juvenile court committee chairman and vicar of an Anglican church near Nelson, charged the girl had been held illegally since shortly after her arrest on a drunk charge in Vancouver last April.

The girl, ward of Victoria Family and Children's Service, was sent to girls' industrial school but was declared to be incorrigible and transferred to Oakalla. Government officials here indicated an order-in-council was passed some time ago approving the transfer.

SEEKING HOME

"We will be making a further attempt to place her in a foster home in any city where we can find a satisfactory home," said David Woodsworth, FCS director.

"What was done in Vancouver had our agreement because we realized there was no reasonable alternative," he said.

The girl had previously been convicted on a drug charge and was transferred from Oakalla to the Nelson jail. Later, she went to Vancouver and was arrested.

"The usual fine for a drinking charge is $10 for an adult offender," said Canon Silverwood. "Why then this stiff sentence and unwarranted transfer?"

Mr. Woodsworth said the girl was held in Oakalla to protect her from drug peddlers under whose influence she had fallen.

"In my opinion, jail is preferable to dope addiction and drinking," he said. "Outside of jail, there is no maximum security in the province."

However, efforts of jail officials to rehabilitate the girl were unsuccessful, because "we haven't got the facilities for this kind of girl."

Canon Silverwood said a good foster home awaits the girl, "a home with which I am well acquainted," but Mr. Woodsworth said the search was still going on.

"She has been in our care in various foster homes for several years," he said. "She is an exceptional case and requires exceptional measures."

'Mad Mike' Behind Iron Bars After Zero Chase in Wilds

(From CP, BUP)

NIDDRIE, Ont.—Mak Mike Timocenko is behind iron bars today after being arrested with his wife while attempting to escape from Ontario provincial police into the wild bush late last night.

Provincial police closed in on Timocenko, 34, a railway laborer, as he was pulling his wife of seven months along in a sleigh. His wife is expecting a baby in two months.

Timocenko was unarmed and offered no resistance to police as they came in on him from two sides. He will be taken to Kenora by car from Amesdale, six miles east of here.

The gunman had holed up in the small cabin in sub-zero weather with a large supply of ammunition and food. He punched out the windows of the hut and had fired about 100 rounds of ammunition intermittently since Thursday night. Early Friday afternoon the shooting stopped.

The six policemen who were at the scene did not return the fire for fear of hitting the woman. They threw two tear gas bombs into the shack Friday afternoon, with no results. It was believed Timocenko had gas masks with him.

Late Friday night they rushed the cabin after dropping a tear gas bomb. The cabin was empty. They immediately set out to search the surrounding area and found the pair almost midway between Niddrie and Amesdale.

Niddrie is a small hamlet of about a dozen families of railway workers. It is located about 206 miles east of Winnipeg, between Reddit and Sioux Lookout.

Timocenko went berserk Thursday following a dispute with his brother-in-law, Anthony Sydor of Oakburn, Man, who is also his section foreman.

An iron curtain of boxcars had been moved up on the CNR tracks to shield police from the gunman. Passenger trains, including the east-bound Super-Continental, managed to roll through the snow-covered battleground undamaged.

Mrs. Keith Rebhan, a resident of Niddrie, said Timocenko "hasn't been right in his head for the last five weeks." She said he has threatened the people in the hamlet that "he would shoot them up."

Princess Gravely Ill

ROME (UP)—Princess Beatrice, daughter of the late King Alphonso XIII of Spain, is seriously ill in a Rome clinic.

Friends said the infanta Beatrice was suffering from a suspected tumor of the brain.

Her mother, the former Queen Victoria Eugenia Christina, arrived from Switzerland Friday morning.

Princess Beatrice is the wife of Prince Alessandro Torlonia, head of one of Italy's wealthiest families.

Thief Loots Mess Funds

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police here Friday were investigating the theft of almost $500 from the petty officers' mess and the wet canteen at HMCS Discovery.

The mess lost $250 and the canteen $221 shortly after a New Year's party at the RCN headquarters. The theft wasn't reported until Thursday, police said.

Moon-Mad Firebug On Loose

NICOLET, Que. (CP) — Belief that a moon-mad firebug is loose in this 5,000-population Quebec town was expressed Friday night by police chief Edouard Beaulac, who said 11 fires since last March show suspicion of criminal action.

The police chief also announced that it has been "definitely established" that a blaze last Saturday —the latest fire—was deliberately set by an unknown arsonist.

The fire destroyed the five-storey mother house of the Grey Nuns religious order in this centre on the south shore of the St. Lawrence river, opposite Trois-Rivieres, Que.

He said all have broken out on weekends and all have occurred in the last phase of the moon.

Chief Beaulac, who is also fire chief, made known his beliefs in the course of a continuing investigation of the blaze.

It caused an estimated $800,000 damage and was the third big fire in this town, about 90 miles northeast of Montreal, in less than a year.

Last March 21, a $700,000 blaze destroyed 35 buildings in the heart of the town, but no one was hurt.

Diaper Flag Halts Trains Just in Time

FLINT, Mich (AP)—Mrs. Thelma Haywood used a diaper Friday to flag down two onrushing trains after her car jammed across a double track.

In the car with Mrs. Haywood were her two young daughters and a fellow worker.

Mrs. Haywood said she saw the two trains bearing down from opposite directions. Grabbing an extra diaper, she waved frantically, and both trains stopped in time.

The 48-year-old Taylor, who suffered a heart attack last year, repeatedly sought an opportunity to face Miss Bentley, now teaching at a Catholic academy in Louisiana, and deny her charges. U.S. security officials denied the request.

Pre-War Pomp, Pageantry To Set Stage for Parliament

OTTAWA (BUP)—The opening of a new session of parliament next week will be the signal for the greatest show of pomp and ceremony, gold braid and silk gowns since the outbreak of the Second world war.

Governor General Vincent Massey will preside at a state dinner Monday night for 100 guests, and receive 400 at a state reception later in the evening. It will be the first post-war revival of the state functions on the eve of a new session.

BLAZE OF SCARLET

A 100-man honor guard from the Governor-General's Foot Guards, a battle-honored Ottawa reserve regiment, and an escort of Royal Canadian Mounted Police in scarlet tunics on black chargers will be mounted on the Parliament Hill driveway for the opening Tuesday.

Inside, the traditional ceremonies will be made even more colorful. All the same leading figures will be playing the same roles as last year, but word from diplomatic row and the social set was that the display of court dress for the men and the latest fashions for their ladies will be even more lavish. The whole panoply will be brightened by the glare of television floodlights for the second time.

Some political sources said the government was even going to the extent of inviting hectic debate on major issues this session, in order to clear the air for a general election in 1957. A general election this year, however, was not inconceivable in the eyes of many observers.

Traitor Shot; Betrayed 500

RENNES, France (Reuters)—A Frenchman who served German military intelligence during the Second World War was shot at dawn here Friday as a traitor.

Claude Besson, 54, was sentenced to death in March, 1955, after he was found guilty of denouncing 500 Maquis (members of a French resistance movement) in north France to the German authorities. Many of them died in concentration camps, and 50 were shot.

French counter-espionage services finally caught up with him in March, 1953.
